NEW PEACE HOPE IN CHAMBERLAIN SPEECH

By NEWELL ROGERS
INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE STAFF CORRESPONDENT

LONDON, Oct. 11 (INS)—While flatly rejecting the peace offer already made as "vague and ambiguous," Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain will give Adolf Hitler another opportunity to present definite proposals, it was stated on high authority in London tonight.

Chamberlain will announce rejection of the present plan in a statement to the House of Commons tomorrow.

In general, authoritative sources said, the speech will follow the lines of Premier Edouard Daladier's radio broadcast, which announced that Britain and France would not lay down their arms until Europe had a secured peace—fully guaranteed against interruptions, mobilization and threats of aggression every six months.

But in addition, Chamberlain will say once again that if Hitler wants to produce real and definite peace proposals "as distinct from the ambiguities" of his Reichstag speech, and if a basis of discussion can be obtained therefrom, such proposals will receive most careful consideration.

Knickerbocker Reports:

4 HITLER ARMIES TO ATTACK FRANCE

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Oct. 11 (INS)—Adolf Hitler has abandoned his peace offensive.

He has ordered immediate preparations to reconquer "at any price" the terrain in front of the Siegfried line now occupied by French troops.

Thereby he intends to "retrieve Germany's honor," which is injured by the presence of French troops on German soil. But he also wishes to pin as many French as possible to positions along the Maginot line while his principal attack goes around the wings through Holland, Belgium and Switzerland.

This information comes from an anti-Nazi intelligence service operating through a neutral country. This service, though obviously biased, has distinguished itself in the past by the accuracy and speed of its information.

HITLER ORDERS QUOTED

It gives its report in the following form:

"Hitler issued this general directive to the army, dated Oct. 9:

"'Since the democracies have shown themselves unyielding, and since the honor of the German army has been impugned through occupation of part of the Saar and the Palatinate, I hereby order:

"'1—Reconstitution of planned advance posts before the Siegfried line at any price. Commanders will keep me constantly informed of the progress of their preparations for attack.

"'2—The attack shall be accomplished through four armies from the direction of Saarburg, Saarbrucken, Firmasens and Landau, with the goal the advanced terrain in front of the Siegfried line.

"'3—At the same time, preparations will be expedited to accomplish a strong attack over Holland and Switzerland and to attack over the Rhine opposite Freiburg. These preparations shall be perfected by the time the advanced terrain in front of the Siegfried line has been reoccupied.'"

Professional observers take this information with great seriousness. They point out among other things that if Hitler did wish to atack across the Rhine, it would logically be opposite Freiburg, where the river is dominated by the massive heights of Kaisertuhl.

NAZI ATTACK MAP—Knickerbocker reports Fuehrer Hitler has ordered his armies to regain (large arrow) the German territory now held by the Allies. Also, he plans to attack across the Rhine (smaller) arrow at Freiburg . . . and (top arrow) to send armies across Holland and Belgium and (lower arrow) Switzerland to strike at France.

War Diary
41st Day

Behind the Front—Finland took new military precautions, both on the land and in the sea today to balk further Russian expansion in the Baltic Sea. Russia, on the other hand, failed to show any signs of relenting and signed a mutual assistance pact with Lithuania. Britain and France still stood firm in their determined stand to "wipe out" Hitlerism and Berlin apparently marked time as far as diplomatic gestures were concerned pending a speech by Prime Minister Chamberlain before the House of Commons tomorrow. London authorities had it that Chamberlain's speech would leave the door open for new Hitler proposals. America's position stood out stronger as foes of the arms embargo repeal movement in the Senate today sought a direct test after losing out in the initial vote in the neutrality battle.

On the Sea, in the Air—Russia continued to mass her Soviet fleet today, apparently in a daring move to retain her pre-war Baltic prominence. Britain still stood firm in her belief that her air force could balk any concerted move by German U-boats and pointed out that in addition, continued flights were being made over the Western Front. The German air force was ordered to renew its attack on the British fleet. Liner Iroquois with American refugees on board is due in New York tonight.

On the Land—H. R. Knickerbocker reports Hitler has ordered four armies to attack on the Western Front preparatory to an enveloping driving on the Maginot line through Holland and Switzerland. Supporting this article French army communiques admitted the Nazi drive on the Western Front was on in earnest by declaring "strong enemy patrols were repulsed anew . . . south of Saarbrucken." London announced 158,000 British troops now are in France.

NEW NAZI AIR WAR ON BRITISH FLEET

BERLIN, Oct. 11 (AP)—The German air force today was ordered to continue its attacks on British warships blockading the North Sea. Official quarters called the order one of the most important German announcements since the war on Poland ended with Warsaw's capitulation.

Aerial co-operation with seacraft in fighting the British North Sea fleet was launched Oct. 7 and authorities said success of the first three days brought the new order to continue joint sea and air operations.

The fact that two German planes made forced landings in Denmark Monday after attacking British warships off the Norwegian coast apparently strengthened Nazi determination to carry through their bombing threat against the fleet.

Germany reported six hits on British vessels durin gthe Monday attack.

(The British Admiralty declared, however, that the German air raiders were driven off without inflicting damage.)

MOSCOW, Oct. 11 (INS)—Conclusion of a Russo-Lithuanian mutual assistance pact was announced today as Soviet leaders turned their attention to Finland as the next field for expanding Russian influence.

The pact signed by Russia and Lithuania amounts to a military alliance under which the Soviets are granted the right to keep army and air force units in Lithuanian territory.

In exchange Lithuania regains its ancient capital, Vilna, which was seized by Poland in 1921 and which was occupied by Soviet troops following the German invasion of Poland.

Military observers in Moscow believed the pact would be followed by fortification of the Lithuanian-German frontier.

Although the Lithuanian pact was regarded as vitally important in the Soviet bid for domination of the Baltic region, interest remained centered on the negotiations with Finland, which are opening today in a tense atmosphere.

NEGOTIATIONS SET

The chief Finnish negotiator, Dr. Juho Paasikivi, and his aides were scheduled to launch the negotiations with Premier-Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov before night. Paasakivi is regarded as one of the greatest authorities on Russo-Finnish affairs.

There was no comment in Moscow on reports of drastic Finnish military precautions—in fact, there was no outward indication that these precautions even interested the Soviet government.

Neither was there any official indication of the demands Russia will make upon Finland. There were unofficial predictions, however, that these will involve Finland's Aland Islands, Lavansaris, Hango and alterations in the Soviet-Finnish frontier.

S. S. Iroquois Safe, Will Dock Tonight

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (INS)—Bearing 584 refugees from Europe, the S. S. Iroquois will slip into New York harbor tonight under the protection of a flotilla of U. S. naval vessels, which made secret rendezvous with the "threatened" ship in mid-Atlantic.

Officials of the U. S. Lines, operators of the ship, said they had received word from the U. S. Maratime Commission that the Iroquois will arrive between 9 and 9:30 p. m. (EST).

The naval vessels were assigned to accompany the ship following a German Admiralty warning that the Iroquois faced the same fate as the S.S. Athenia, torpedoed and sunk in the north Atlantic immediately after outbreak of the European war.

500 STORM DOCK

Throughout the day, with silence hitherto blanketing the ship's movements, relatives of passengers aboard the Iroquois tramped the North River pier waiting for the ship to dock. More than 500 stormed the offices of the collector of ports, seeking passes permitting them to meet their kin when the ship arrives.

While the Iroquois neared Nantucket lightship, search by land and sea was intensified for an alien submarine reported lurking along the Atlantic seaboard.

An amphibian plane from the Salem coast guard base rejoined coast guard and naval vessels which have sought out the sub since it was sighted three days ago off the Maine coast.

In warning that the Iroquois would be sunk, the German admiralty indicated plans had been made to blow her up off the American coast. It left the implication that the carrier would be sunk by Great Britain or France, an implication British sources said was too ridiculous to deny.

456 Americans Sail For U. S. on Acadia

CORK, Ire., Oct. 11 (AP)—The Eastern Steamship liner Acadia sailed for the United States today with 456 passengers. Many of them had been unable to get passage on the Iroquois Oct. 13 and after a long wait here had exhausted their funds.

Apparently undisturbed by a German "tip" that the Iroquois (due in New York tonight) was to have been the object of an attack, Acadia passengers said they did not worry about submarine scares as long as they had a chance to get home.

For four hours, Scituate police and firemen worked over the boy, but finally the labors were given up as useless and he was pronounced dead by Dr. William E. Hines of Hingham, the medical examiner.

SALEM STUDENTS IN NEW WALKOUT

Peace negotiations broke down and the Salem High School student strike was renewed today, as Supt. of Schools George Bemis was booed in the high school auditorium and 250 boy and girl pupils marched out of the building.

It was the second walkout in 24 hours. Both were staged in protest against so-called "tyranny" of Acting Principal James J. Murray.

A straw effigy of Murray was burned by students last night in a wild demonstration in downtown Salem, with an estimated 1000 high school pupils participating.

LOOKED LIKE PEACE

The disorder of last night was in spite of the fact that a student committee had announced, just previously, that peace negotiations had been succesful and all strikers would be back at their classes this morning.

The expected armistice did progress today to a point where a classroom attendance of 100 per cent was reported and the student body gathered in the school assembly hall to hear its committee report.

Members of the student committee were on the platform, prepared to address their fellow pupils when Supt. Bemis decided to take a hand in the situation.

ORDERS THEM OFF

He abruptly ordered the committee off the platform and addressed the student body himself.

There'd be no more negotiation or dickering, he said uncompromisingly. He, personally, would listen to grievances of any individual student. But every pupil would be "on his own." Each would be held responsible for his conduct.

"Now I want you all to go back to your classrooms in an orderly manner, with all these unfortunate happenings forgotten and wiped off the record," Bemis concluded.

The answer was a roof-raising chorus of boohs and catcalls.

GIRLS JOIN IN

Approximately the same number of students who remained on strike yesterday joined in today's second walkout.

Of the 250 who strode out of the building, shouting and singing, a large proportion were girls and a majority were freshmen, with a scattering of sophomores.

Football Captain Walden Osborne and members of the varsity squad went to the school yard and pleaded with the strikers to return.

But the only response the popular athletes got was jeers and hoots and a shower of pebbles picked up from the gravel walk in front of the school.

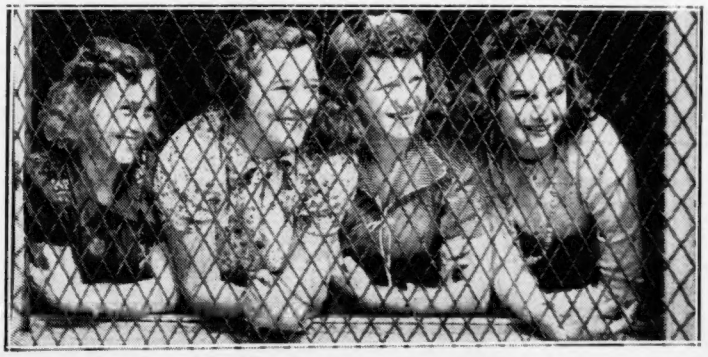
TEACHER'S PLEA FAILS

Later in the day a mediating committee of students cajoled the strikers into returning to the school auditorium where they listened quietly to a peace plea made by Miss Marie Barry, popular commercial department teacher.

But again Supt. Bemis took the platform, announcing that "last night's disgraceful downtown demonstration" had forfeited whatever rights the strikers might have had.

So again the superintendent drew a chorus of catcalls and again the strikers stalked out of the building.

"The real fault is with the parents of these misguided young people," was Supt. Bemis' last word.



WHEN Salem High School students walked out on strike, they left behind them the above four charming girls who refused to join the exodus. Phyllis Thibodeau, Helen Brooks, Florence Kaplan and Betty O'Brien, left to right, saw the fun from "behind bars." Strike flared anew today.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN will be published as usual tomorrow, Columbus Day, Oct. 12.

BRITAIN GAGS PEACE TALK

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Britain tried to track down source of "defeatist propaganda" in the home front today amid indications of mounting sentiment against talk of "appeasement."

While press comment indicated a growing desire to "get on with the war," Scotland Yard submitted to the Home Office a report on "make peace with Hitler" pamphlets attributed to Pacifist, Fascist and Communist elements.

Home Office legal experts received in complaints that such literature has been distributed from door to door and through the mails, studied means of combatting this form of propaganda.

DO JOB NOW

Public opinion in general was represented as insistent on flat rejection of proposals from Adolf Hitler for what the British regarded as peace at his own price—the partition of Poland.

Typical of the reaction of the London man in the street was the assertion that "if we don't do the job now we'll have a worse time six months from now."

The press gave almost unanimous approval to Premier Daladier's radio speech Tuesday night in which he declared that France would fight on until "guarantees of security" for "lasting peace" in Europe were assured.

Prime Minister Chamberlain's scheduled speech in Parliament tomorrow replying to Hitler's end-the-war gestures was expected to follow the general lines of Daladier's declaration.

Diplomatic circles attached significance to the fact that Chamberlain had scheduled a meeting with August Zaleski, Poland's new foreign minister, on the eve of the appearance in the House of Commons. Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary, will join the c[o]nference.

Government quarters showed [c]oncern over reports that Wa[r] War Prime Minister David Lloyd George was preparing to test [B]ritish peace sentiment through [a] council for peace and reconstru[c]tion.

Cabinet members were said [t]o be ready to deliver "pep talks" [i]n all important centers in the eve[n]t any strongly organized campaign to embarrass the government's w[a]r efforts should develop.

The Laborite Daily Herald's p[o]litical correspondent declared tha[t] Lloyd George's "stock has go[ne] down with a hearty bump" as a result of his recent speeches and articles, interpreted as smacking of appeasement.

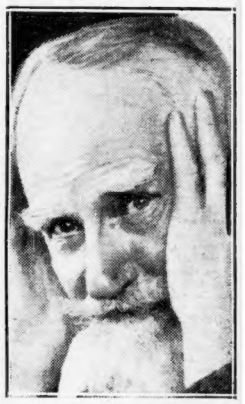
Shaw Asks Britain To 'Bomb Berlin' or Call Peace Parley

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—George Bernard Shaw says it's up to Prime Minister Chamberlain to declare whether he is willing to pursue war by bombing Berlin and if not, the sooner a peace conference is held the better.



GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

"Our pledge to Poland was explicit," Shaw wrote to the Manchester Guardian. "For the R. A. F. to bomb Berlin was the only way we could help Poland, being unable to put a British soldier into Poland or a British ship into the Baltic.

"Now bombing Berlin meant retaliations in which our cities and German cities would be changed into rubbish heaps.

"And when it came to this point Mr. Chamberlain found simply that he could not bring himself to do it.

"The Berlin-Rome axis was to have annihilated us, but when Signor Mussolini realized what he was letting Italy in for at the hands of the French and British air aces and the Mediterranean fleet, he backed out.

"The anti-Comintern pact was to have rallied all capitalist Europe against the U. S. S. R., with the Fuehrer and Il Duce as saviors of the world from Communism.

"What actually happened was that when all capitalist Europe, with Japan in the bargain, realized that the Red army held the military balance they all sought an alliance with Russia.

"Stalin just pushed them out of the way and took what he wanted of Poland. Herr Hitler, seeing that the anti-Comintern pact had gone 'phut,' quickly decided to claim Stalin as an ally and share the spoils with him.

"What Minister Chamberlain has to declare now is whether he is going to bomb Berlin or not. If he does, the consequences will go far beyond our maddest intentions and be different from anything either we or Herr Hitler contemplate.

"If not, the sooner we stop the war and arrange for tabling of our respective grievances and those of the little states we have destroyed, the better."

BRITAIN PREPARED IF SOVIETS ATTACK

By CHARLES A. SMITH

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 11 (INS)—Indicating full British preparedness for a possible Soviet thrust southward to the Persian gulf, the British government has "strongly reinforced" its garrisons in the middle east coincident with dispatch of an expeditionary force of 158,000 men to France, War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha told the House of Commons today.

"British soldiers have not only been transported to France," Hore-Belisha said. "The middle east has been strongly reinforced, also our garrisons elsewhere, both in material and men.

FORTIFY LINE

"At this moment, troops of the expeditionary force in France are busy fortifying their positions in the line.

"Britain," the secrtary said, "has more than fulfilled the undertaking recently given to France to dispatch to France in event of war a British expeditionary force of a specified dimension within a specified time.

"We have also created our base and lines of communication so as to assure a regular flow of supplies and muntions of every kind.

"Nor are these contingents at present across the channel the last which will arrive."

Convoys bearing British troops have averaged three nightly, Hore-Belisha said,

FORCES IN FRANCE

"The British expeditionary force," he continued, "has been transported to France intact and without a single casualty to personnel.

"We have transported to France 25,000 mechanized units, including tanks, some of enormous dimensions weighing fifteen tons and upwards, requiring special ships and special handling.

"As a precaution against air and other attacks, most devious routes were selected. The men were dispersed into small groups, halted in concealed areas in daylight, and moved on at night-time.

"We have completed great reserves of airplane fuel in France."

FLAYS ROOSEVELT 'WAR EMERGENCY' ACTS

Senator Clark Cites Panama Canal Edict

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Senator Clark (D.) of Missouri, an opponent of the Administration proposal to repeal the arms embargo, contended today that President Roosevelt had exercised emergency powers actually vested in him only when the country was at war or in imminent danger of war.

Arguing against lifting the ban on arms sales to belligerents, Clark also accused Louis Johnson, assistant Secretary of War, of trying to "inflame the people as to the safety of our own shores," and said policies of the President himself had not been "reassuring."

The Missouri Senator said that a careful scrutiny of the President's recent proclamation of a "limited emergency" showed that it contained no limitations.

"It is a proclamation national emergency without any limitations whatever," he asserted. "Under it the President can exercise all of the powers of a national emergency which he can exercise without specific authority of Congress.

"The only limitation is the limitation voluntarily placed by the President upon himself in his discussion with newspaper men when he stated that he only intended to use a portion of those powers at this time."

CITES PANAMA ORDER

The President's executive order, transferring control of the Panama Canal Zone from the Governor of the Canal Zone to the army, Clark said, was far more important and disquieting.

The Canal one code, he contended, vests authority in the President only when there is a state of war in which the United States is engaged or when war is imminent.

He said Assistant Secretary Johnson had delivered a speech "in which he sought to inflame the people as to the safety of our own shores by comparing our situation to that of Poland."

"In my judgment," Clark boomed, "no more idiotic, moranic, unpatriotic remark has ever been made by a man in a high public position."

He said this was "the same Louis Johnson who has been flying around the country in an army plane for the past several years preaching the inevitability of war and the certainty of our being drawn in."

CONTINUES ATTACK

"This is the same Louis Johnson who recently, without any apparent authority of law, set up a war resources board, stacked its personnel with Morgan-duPont controlled members and publicly announced that as soon as we entered into war, under authority of an act which has never been passed by the Congress, the war resources board would become the war resources administration, and its chairman, the head of the steel trust, would become the virtual economic and industrial dictator—except for price-fixing, which was to be handled by another similar committee.

"To be sure after the affiliations of the personnel of the war industries board were exposed, the Persident announced that they would soon conclude theeir labors and be disbanded, but Louis Johnson is still in office and the board has not been disbanded."

Clark also denounced what he said was an effort on the part of the War Department to make the nation war-minded by preparations for the draft.

ATTACKS AUSTIN

At one point Clark charged that Sen. Austin (R.) of Virginia, had "come forward frankly" with a statement that he intended to vote for embargo repeal because it would be "an affective way of helping England and France."

Austin interrupted.

"I'm sure the senator from Missouri," he said, "roesn't intend to ignore the real spirit, if not the letter, of the statement. "The real spirit of that was national defense, that we will protect the institutions and the peace of the United States by affording the allies access to all resources we have, short of our sons and daughters."

Clark replied that Austin's suggestion was that England and France were "fighting this country's battle."

If that were true, he contended, the U. S. should "go in frankly as allies instead of hucksters of arms and ammunition."

HITLER'S FOE ILL

BERLIN, Oct. 11 (AP)—The newspaper Boersen Zeitung today reported that Michael Cardinal Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich, who has been at odds with the Nazis frequently, was seriously ill with a heart ailment.

DOWNED BY ALLIES — Somewhere on the western front, this speedy Messerschmidt fighting plane crashed . . . brought down by French anti-aircraft gunners as it attempted to attack allied planes returning from reconnaissance flight over Siegfried line.

KRIVITSKY BARES 500,000 RED PURGE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (INS)—The "inside story" of the Josef Stalin dictatorship in Soviet Russia—a story of gigantic blood purges and the puppet role of the Communist Party in the United States—was told before the Dies committee today by Gen. W. G. Krivitsky, once head of Russian espionage in eastern Europe.

Highlights of Gen. Krivitsky's testimony were:

That Stalin had abandoned his idea of world conquest by workers' revolutions and used Communist parties in other countries, including the United States, to "popularize" his purges and his pact with Germany.

That Stalin purged or imprisoned approximately 500,000 Communists, and Red army officers in 1935 and 1936.

The Earl Browder, secretary of the Communist party in the United States, is "not actually the head of the party," but takes his orders from two Soviet agents of Stalin.

Explaining how Stalin used Communist parties in other countries to support his internal and international policies, Gen. Krivitsky said:

BROKE OVER PURGES

"For example, he (Stalin) would never have been able to conduct the great purges if he had not been able to direct the support of the Communist parties the world over."

Krivitsky said he broke with Stalin because of the wholesale purges.

Krivitsky, speaking through an interpreter, Boris Shub of New York city, added:

"Matters reached a point where no one could remain in the party and not take an active part in the purge. When Stalin ordered me to participate, I broke with Stalin."

The general drew national attention six months ago by predicting in a series of magazine articles that an alliance between the Soviet Russia and the Hitler governments would be consummated.

ARMY ORGANIZER

Krivitsky asked that he be allowed to testify in Russian through his interpreter, explaining he did not feel competent to employ his smattering of English. He rubbed his forehead repeatedly as he testified, toying nervously with a pencil.

The 40-year-old Russian, a slight figure with greying hair brushed in pompadour style, said he was born Samuel (Shmelka) Ginsberg, but took the name of Walter Krivitsky as a Soviet official.

A Bolshevik from the age of 15 on, Krivitsky said that one of his first assignments in military intelligence was in Germany. He explained:

"I was sent there to lay the groundwork for a Communist revolution and to organize a Red army of Germany."

'Exiled' Britons Miss the Pubs

And They 'Cawn't Hunderstand' Rural Language

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—England uprooted 1,500,000 crying babies, weeping mothers, scared youngsters and bewildered old folks from city homes and moved them to the country without much fuss just before the war began.

Now the headaches are starting.

"Hi cawn't hunderstand their blinkin' langwidge."

"Wot? No fish-and-chips shops?"

"Coo blimey! The pub's a mile away?"

KIDS ENJOYING SELVES

Those are some of the complaints from "expatriates."

From the country folk on whom these temporary exiles have been billeted came exasperated cries that their enforced guests are damaging property and that they cost too much.

Almost all the kids from the East End of London, the warrens of the Liverpool docks and the mill districts of Manchester are having a wonderful time and are gaining tremendous physical benefits; that is the bright side of the picture.

On the other side are the immense sociological and physical problems created by breaking up families and moving women and children who had lived their whole lives amid the smoke of factories and the rumble of trucks to the strange hush of villages that might have been transplanted from a Tudor picture book.

WON'T STAY PUT

Some of these people are being cared for in stately houses, others in humble cottages. The government pays $2 a week for food and lodging for each school child; $1 for each mother and 60 cents for each baby.

One major problem arose two weeks after the dispersal. The government, lacking powers to compel people to stay where they had been put, broadcast appeals against the return to the cities. But homesick mothers and children poured back to the familiar signs and faces anyway.

In the villages, pathetic knots of women gathered at street corners, straining for glimpse or sound of city life. Children wailed in their sleep because it was "too quiet." Wistful mothers sat in the dark—for village, like city, is plunged into a nightly inky blackout — and longed for husbands, movies and the friendly warmth of corner "pubs."

A room in somebody else's house, or a straw mattress on the floor, isn't fun, and it's hard when your Cockney tongue can't speak the strange Lancashire or South country accent of your hardworking hostess, or you don't like her kind of food, or her way of cooking it.

BOMBS OR BATHS

The government promised to pay for damage to property. But the government was stumped by stories like that of the mother who wailed:

"I wished I'd never brought the little 'uns here; I'd almost rather have them bombed than bathed!"

Back home, the lot of father is depressing. He must eat his own badly-cooked meals, keep his clothes mended, sit in darkened, silent rooms at night.

Some have suggested communal kitchens for these fathers. But they will have to take their turn—there are more urgent things just now.

War Writer Chaplin Leaves for Front

LONDON, Oct. 11 (INS)—W. W. Chaplin, International News Service war correspondent, left London today with a party of about 30 other reporters for the western front. Chaplin is one of 12 American newspapermen and photographers accredited to the British expeditionary forces in France.

The exact time of his departure and the routine the correspondents will take were not disclosed.

The coach replied, "Yes, but they're not born made" ...We at White's think the same thing about well dressed men . . . they may be born dressers but they're taught how to pick out their clothes . . . and over 11,000 of Boston's good dressers pick out WHITELY.

Storey Appointed Head of Fin. Com.

Charles Moorfield Storey of Perkins st., Jamaica Plain, ousted as a member of the Boston Finance Commission in January, 1935, by former Gov. Curley's executive council, was today nominated for the commission by Gov. Saltonstall, who designated him as chairman.

CHARLES M. STOREY Named for State Post

As chairman, Storey would receive a salary of $5000 a year. The chair is the only salaried post on the commission.

If confirmed by the Governor's council, Storey would replace Finance Commissioner Joseph A. Scolponeti, whose term has expired, while David Lasker, the present chairman, would become an unpaid member.

Storey was outsted in 1935 after a lengthy hearing on charges of reprehensible conduct, but a resolution adopted by the executive council which voted his removal absolved him from any dishonest practice and declared the action had been taken to preserve the respect essential to the proper conduct of the commission.

FIGURED IN LAND SALE

During the hearing, Storey, a Republican, had admitted representing Samuel L. Lowe, whose profits in land sold to the city in the East Boston tunnel takings were under investigation by the Finance Commission, of which Storey then was a member.

Storey refused an offer by Curley to accept Storey's resignation before the vote of the executive council and while he was under fire.

Gov. Saltonstall also nominated today Frank Forastier of Warriner ave., Springfield, to the Board of Registration in Embalming and Funeral Directing in place of Daniel F. O'Brien of Cambridge.

OTHER APPOINTMENTS

Other appointments were as follows:

Joseph A. Conway of Hull, to the State Ballot Law Commission, a reappointment.

George E. Proulx of Fourth st., Leominster, as master in chancery, a reappointment.

Vitalis R. Kundzics of Rutland st., Brockton, as master in chancery in place of J. Morris Maguire, whose term has expired.

Carroll H. Keene of Chatham, as medical examiner, the Barnstable County first district, a reappointment.

State Considers New Executioner

To succeed the late Robert Elliott as official state executioner, "three or four good men" are under consideration, it was said today by Massachusetts prison officials.

The man to be chosen for the job, which pays $150 for each execution, probably will be the person already under consideration as executioner for New York's Sing Sing state prison at Ossining.

For years Massachusetts has used the same executioner as that employed in New York.

According to Warden Francis J. W. Lanagan of State Prison at Charlestown, the new executioner has already been "tentatively chosen."

Elliott Funeral Plans Completed

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (INS)—Arrangement of funeral services were completed today for Robert Elliott, the man who threw the switch that brought legal death to more than 375 criminals.

Last rites for the 65-year-old Elliott, who died of a heart ailment, will be conducted at his suburban Richmond Hill home Thursday night.

NEW BERGDOLL BABE, MOTHER 'DOING FINE'

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11 (INS)—Mrs. Berta Bergdoll, wife of the notorious World War draft dodger, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, today was mother to their sixth child—a six-pound 13-ounce girl—in Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia.

"Both are doing fine," doctors said.

Last week Mrs. Bergdoll was with her husband when a court-martial found him guilty of deserting the U. S. army and added three years to his five-year sentence for draft dodging.

CRIPPLED GIRL WINS $20,737

LOWELL, Oct. 11 She may never dance or walk again, but a jury took care today to see that she may never want for anything when it awarded verdicts totaling $20,737.95 to 12-year-old Mary Breen, crippled for life in an automobile mishap June 8, 1937.

On that date, according to evidence offered before Judge Daniel T. O'Connell and a jury in the Middlesex Superior Court, she was standing on the curbing at Read and Seventh sts. when struck by a car driven by Patrolman James J. Boyle, now dead.

The car passed on, and was then backed up, again rolling over her. She was in court, and, according to Attorney Hubert McLaughlin, was permanently injured.

Attorneys for the estate of the dead policeman, who was an elderly man at the time of the accident, admitted liability at the opening of the trial. The verdicts were, respectively, $16,000 for direct personal injuries, and $4,737.95 to cover the cost of doctor and hospital bills. Both are against the policeman's estate, which, however, is covered by insurance.

Pardon Racket In Court Test

Two of the more important pardon racket cases being investigated by the special legislative commission on pardons and paroles are to be tried in the courts for a test of the commission's evidence, it was learned today.

It is also reported that if these two cases are brought to a successful conclusion in the courts it may preclude the necessity of holding public hearings and speed trial of eight other "big cases."

Several weeks ago the commission turned over evidence in one case to District Attorney Robert F. Bradford and trial is to be held within two weeks.

It was learned today that evidence in another important case was turned over to a prosecuting official in "another county" following a vote taken at an executive session of the commission.

Stoneham Girl Will Be Bride

Wedding bells will chime tomorrow at St. Patrick's Church, Stoneham, where Miss Loretta McDonough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. McDonough of Flint ave., Stoneham, is to be married to William J. Cassidy, Jr., of Stoneham.

The bride will be attended by her sister, Frances, as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids are to be Miss Wilhelmina Gray and Miss Anna Cassidy, both of Stoneham. The best man will be Robert Cassidy of Stoneham.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Gallagher of Winchester gave a prenuptial dinner in honor of the approaching wedding last Monday night.

'Ash Tray Target' Granted Divorce

One husband married on Christmas Day, another on St. Valentine's Day, but today in Middlesex Probate Court the gloss of these happy dates had all worn off and both husbands won uncontested divorces.

Chester E. Carter, formerly of Wakefield but now of Cedar pl., Beacon Hill, testified that he tried to make up with Dorothy Arline Carter of Wakefield at one time—only to be greeted by a full cup of coffee.

It was hardly refreshing because, he said, it was not placed carefully at his place at the table, but was hurled across the glowering board, to burst like a wet bombshell against his bosom.

Earlier than that, he said, she had zipped such articles as footstools and ash trays at him, and his bridal date of Christmas Day in 1935 seemed far, far away.

Earl F. Vasey of Stoneham said he was 17 when he took a 14-year-old bride, Edna C. Vasey, now of West Ossipee, N. H., on St. Valentine's Day, 1935.

She left him the following April, he testified, and he has seen her but once since—last August, when she told him to hurry up and get a divorce because she wanted to get married again.

He won the divorce but she was awarded custody of their child.

A divorce was also granted Mrs. Eilese Clark of Fletcher ave., Lexington, from Harry E. Clark of Cambridge.

Mrs. Clark testified that once, in a quarrel over a bed covering (she thought they didn't need it on the bed, but he did), he punched her, but her strongest memory was of the time, she said, when he stepped over her prostrate form at the foot of a stairway while she was ill.

INDICT 2 BANK MEN IN THEFTS

Two bank employes were indicted, charged with embezzling a total fo $20,94.82, and two other men were indicted on other charges in returns made to Judge Francis J. W. Ford in United States court by a federal grand jury today.

Elzebert J. Ouellette of Southbridge, cashier of the Southbridge People's National Bank, is charged with taking $13,736.52 from April 29 to June 14, 1939, and with making false entries to cover the loss.

Lyman W. Harrington of Allston, teller in the Allston branch of the First National Bank of Boston, was charged with five counts of embezzling $7258.30 from March 4 to July 3, and with making five false entries in the books.

Fred W. Martin, alias Edward Higins, of Boston was charged with the theft of a typewriter from the National Guard armory on East Newton st.

One secret indictment was also returned by the jury.

AFL Sidesteps Embargo Stand

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 11 (INS)—Sidestepping a definite statement for or against either the "cash and carry" neutrality plan or retention of the arms embargo, the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor today referred the entire subject of neutrality to its executive council.

Important points in the resolutions committee report, adopted by the convention, were these:

1. That offers to mediate the European conflict now might be premature "and prove without successful results."

2. That polices which are being advocated now and which would seem to be neutral and justified might eventually "force us into war."

3. That labor should be represented on every emergency board.

While taking no open position on neutrality, the convention voted to add Russia "or any other country that allies itself with Germany" to its boycott list. Products of Germany have been boycotted for several years.

65 New Firms in Hub Area Add 600 Jobs

With 65 new commercial and industrial firms in the Boston district since January, 1939, more than 600 jobs have been created, the Boston Chamber of Commerce revealed today.

Figures supplied by the bureau of commercial and industrial affairs show there is a gain of eight firms over last year and a 65 per cent increase in the number of jobs provided.

3 Die, 62 Hurt; School Bus Falls 75 Ft.

WAR, W. Va., Oct. 11 (AP)—A disabled school bus careened from a highway and plunged down a 75-foot embankment today, killing three students and injuring 62 other persons, some critically.

The big, 70-passenger machine, carrying 64 students and the driver to Big Creek high school here, fell on the Norfolk and Western Railway tracks and smashed to bits.

The dead were identified as Maxine Beavers of Bartley, 18-year-old high school senior, crushed under the wreckage; Lucille Mullins of Raysal, who died in Stevens clinic at Welch; and 17-year-old Ernest Wood of Bartley, who succumbed in Grace Hospital at Welch.

3 PLEAD GUILTY IN DOPE SALE

Trial of three men and a woman today in Federal court on charges in connection with the alleged sale of $40,000 worth or heroin in Greater Boston, was abruptly halted, the case was taken from the jury and the three men changed their pleas to guilty.

No shift was made by the woman defendant, Mrs. Mary Lochiatto, alias Mary Locke, of Medford, but it was announced that her case will be disposed of later.

Those who changed their pleas after a conference between Judge Francis J. W. Ford, Asst. U. S. Atty. Edward E. Hassan and counsel for the accused were James Cassetta, alias Jimmy Boston, of Columbus ave., South End; Amadee F. Florino, alias Barrett and Barry, of Allen st., West End, and Charles A. Cassino of New York.

Before the trial opened two days ago, four others pleaded guilty to the charges of conspiracy to sell and to the sale of heroin.

They are John Lochiatto of Medford, Nicolas Giganti of Cambridge, James A. Smith of Columbus ave., and his wife Anna.

It was announced that the seven who have pleaded guilty will be sentenced at 10 a. m. Friday by Judge Ford.

Dr. Eliot Starts Synagogue Lecture

Dr. Frederick M. Eliot, president of the Unitarian Ass'n of America, and a former member of the board of preachers at Harvard University, tonight inaugurates a teaching program at Temple Sinai which is designed to establish the synagogue as a center of adult education, according to Rabbi Beryl D. Cohen.

Dr. Eliot, a former professor of government at Harvard, will be the first of a succession of guest lecturers intended to re-establish the "teaching synagogue," declared Rabbi Cohen, spiritual leader of Boston's youngest Jewish temple.

Mrs. Roosevelt 55 Years Old Today

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (INS)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, will celebrate her 55th birthday today, but there will be only 21 candles on the birthday cake. Norton, Two Others Get School Post O. K.

City Councilor Clement Norton, Mrs. Hattie H. Smith and School Committeeman Joseph C. White of West Roxbury today bore the endorsement of the revived Public School Association, meeting for the first time in 25 years.

Twenty-two other candidates act[illegible] the three vacancies to be filled on the board in the November election.

In announcing the endorsement, Dr. David D. Scannell, president of the association, issued the following statement:

"Mrs. Smith, active in civic affairs, has shown a public-spirited interest for community betterment which admirably fits her for the task. A mother, with children in the public high schools, she will make a valuable addition to the committee.

"Mr. Norton, a deep student of government, will bring to the duties of the Boston School Committee an excellent combination of honesty and intelligence. He has an intimate knowledge of the city and its problems.

"Mr. White's record as a member of the Boston School Committee warrants his re-election. He has displayed a co-operative spirit and an impartial attitude. His decisions have shown that he has held the interest of the school children foremost in his mind."

QUEEN MARY'S AIDE DIES

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Sir Gerald Chichester, 53, private secretary to Queen Mary since 1935, died today at his home in Surrey.

Tom Mooney Trip to Boston Is Blocked by Attack of Illness

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 11 (AP)—Tom Mooney reported today that recurrence of hemorrhaging from an old ulcer had forced him to cancel a speaking tour that would have carried him east to Boston and back to San Francisco by the first of the year.

A statement said he suffered the attack upon arriving here yesterday for a series of meetings in Pennsylvania, and that he would have to remain at his hotel until his condition improved sufficiently for his removal to a hospital. He plans to return to California as soon as he is able to leave the hospital.

Citizens Storm La. Court, Boo Long

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 11 (AP)—Growing dissension was reported today among members of the old Huey P. Long dictatorship as emboldened citizen groups, "revolting" against alleged graft and corruption, launched new attacks.

Some 5000 citizens gathered yesterday in front of Criminal Court, repeatedly hissed Gov. Earl K. Long's name, and yelled for the removal from office of District Attorney Charles A. Byrne.

Seven members of the New Orleans grand jury investigating political scandals charged Byrne was hampering its work by shielding suspected law violators.

Two jurors who sought to read the charges in court were arrested, sentenced for contempt and dismissed from the jury.

Byrne, in a formal statement, blamed the present trouble on "partisan politicians" attempting to "sway the grand jury and to impress judges by the clamoring of a mob."

He said he and his aides had given the grand jury every assistance.

With several moves on foot to displace the Administration-appointed Byrne, Gov. Long hurried to New Orleans from Baton Rouge late yesterday.

He conferred with his adherents far into the night in a suite in the hotel which Huey once frequented. A spokesman said it was just a "friendly get-together."

The Times-Picayune asserted some of the city leaders were disgruntled over a number of Long's selections of candidates for the legislature in the January primary in which Long will seek to succeed himself. There are 10 other gubernatorial candidates.

Many leaders of the once all-powerful Long regime have fallen under federal and state indictments including former Governor Richard W. Leche and Seymour Weiss, once Long's treasurer.

ILLNESS BAFFLES DOCTORS

WILLIAMSTOWN, Oct. 11—The semi-paralytic state of William H. D. Rossiter, a William College senior, continued to baffle physicians today. Despite a normal pulse and heartbeat, Rossiter is unable to move his left arm. His condition, however, is reported as slightly improved.

LIVING DEATH is that of the now six-year-old Maxine Yarrington, Erie, Pa., "sleeping beauty," shown above some time after she was stricken with encephalitis lethargica. She has awakened from four-year slumber but her mind, ravaged by the disease, is completely blank. It will always be so, says her doctor.

'SLEEPING BEAUTY' WAKES--'BRAIN DEAD'

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 11 (AP)—Six-year-old Maxine Yarrington, blue-eyed "sleeping beauty," has awakened from four years of slumber, but her mind always will be blank, her "prince charming" said today.

Dr. H. B. Emerson, child specialist who has treated little Maxine daily since she was stricken by sleeping sickness, said her brain no longer functions because it has been badly scarred by the disease.

"Sometimes victims of encephalitis lethargica recover completely or die," he said. "Instead of dying, Maxine has been left without mentality."

Maxine still does not see, although her eyes may open. She will eat all the food placed in her mouth. She goes to sleep like a normal child, yet when she awakens, she does not know it.

She was stricken on her second birthday, Sept. 24, 1935, and spent each succeeding birthday and Christmas in her crib. She had no cakes or candles for her birthday and never saw the dolls and other gifts sent her by hundreds who read of her plight.

"No matter how long she lives, it is beyond medical science to remedy this condition," Dr. Emerson said, adding:

"She might as well have no brain at all. She is awake physically and practically dead mentally."

LITHUANIA, RED PACT IS SIGNED

with Lithuania greatly increase Russian power in the Baltic because of the provision giving the USSR the right to station troops in Lithuanian territory.

In addition, the Soviets pledge to supply war materials to Lithuania on favorable terms. The exact number of Soviet troops to be permitted to "defend Lithuania" will be fixed later by agreement.

Both Russia and Lithuania promise not to enter any alliance with any third power directed against either of the signatories and also agree to non-intervention in each other's domestic affairs.

The pact will run for 15 years with Lithuania retaining Vilna in the event the pact is cancelled at a later date.

Soviet troops maintained in Lithuania will be kept there at the expense of Russia. They will be strictly limited in strength and confined to certain fixed points.

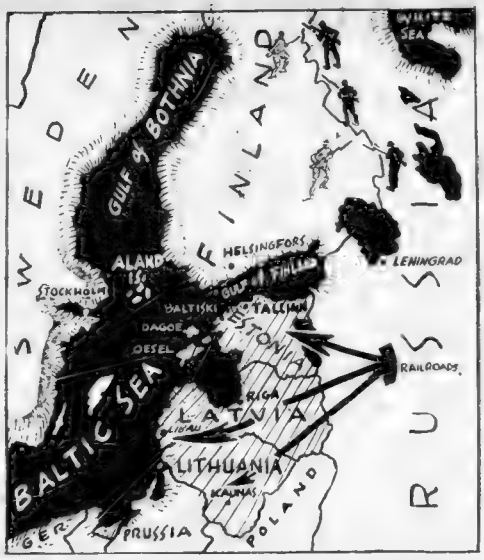
In the event of aggression against either of the contracting parties the pact provides for immediate consultation between the two governments on joint measures to be taken to protect the territorial integrity of each state.

BULLETINS

LONDON, Oct. 11 (INS)—An appeal to the United States for support in the present Russo-Finnish crisis will be broadcast tomorrow by Foreign Minister Elias Erkko of Finland, a Reuters dispatch from Berlin said the German official news agency reported today.

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The British Ministry of Supply and a Soviet trade delegation today concluded an agreement in London for the exchange of Russian timber for British rubber and tin.

TALLINN, Oct. 11 (AP)—Premier Kaarel Eenpalu's cabinet has resigned, it was formally announced today, to permit reorganization of the government on a broader basis. At the same time a joint Estonian-Soviet Russian commission announced it had reached an agreement implementing the pact recently executed by the two countries represented.



CONTROL of Baltic Sea is virtually Russia's now, with only Finland, sturdy little seaport nation, standing in the way. Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania have bowed to the Soviet demand of sea access but Finland today was massing her troops on the Russian border, while 450,000 Russian soldiers were within striking distance of Finland. Meanwhile, Finland's foreign minister was due in Moscow for "conversations."

FINNS FLEE CITIES; NATION SET FOR WORST

HELSINKI, Oct. 11 (AP)—A civilian exodus from Helsinki and Viipuri was in full swing today as the Finns anxiously awaited developments in Moscow, where a delegation headed by former Premier Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi arrived for "political and economic" talks with Soviet leaders.

This followed increased military activity by Finland and an experimental blackout of this capital city last night.

Responsible Finnish sources said a firm refusal would be the nation's answer to any Soviet Russian request for military and economic concessions such as Russia obtained recently from Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

With many women and children having already left the city, in response to a radio appeal yesterday by Interior Minister Urho Kekkonen, approximately 129,000 persons have signified their readiness to leave. Of these, 64,000 were children under 16, their nurses or guardians, and adult invalids.

Railway and bus stations were crowded with persons leaving the cities, chiefly for the country. Long lines of women and children stood at ticket windows. All schools were closed.

The Helsinki station was crowded at dawn, and as the day wore on the lines leading to the ticket windows stretched out a block long. The busiest windows were those distributing free tickets provided by the government for those unable to afford the fares.

The population was grim and calm.

In order to facilitate the exodus, the government lifted the ban against private automobiles, and gasoline was placed on sale.

London Predicts Russo-Turkish Pact

LONDON, Oct. 11 (INS)—Whitehall circles, apparently on the basis of latest reports from Sir William Seeds, British ambassador to Moscow, predicted a Russo-Turkish pact eventually would be signed.

The protracted visit to Moscow of Sukru Saracoglu, Turkish foreign minister, was explained as necessitated by the task of harmonizing the texts of the Russo-Turkish and Anglo-Turkish treaties. British quarters claimed these accords will not conflict in any fundamental point.

The same circles scoffed at a Riga report that Russia is sending 17 tons of gold to Germany, but admitted Britain now is resigned to the prospect of Russia giving Hitler strong diplomatic and some material support.

Nevertheless, London officials still refuse to believe that the Soviets will go to war to aid Hitler.

Competent British circles expressed doubts Finland would be able to resist or that Sweden would be able to assist the Finns if Russia marches to carry out her demands upon Finland.

It was admitted the British and French would be unable to aid Finland, but it was emphasized strongly that whatever happens in the Baltic or Scandinavian regions at present will not prove final.

These quarters recalled that Germany overran Belgium during the World War, but eventually was compelled to leave as a result of the allied victory.

The same circles said they were not certain that Russia wants even a little war with Finland, but added they were expecting "anything" to happen.

Zero Hour Is Near For Big Nazi Push, French Declare

By KENNETH T. DOWNS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Oct. 11 (INS)—Judging from German military dispositions, plus constantly increasing activity and pressure by Reich patrols on the western front, the zero hour of a great offensive in Europe's war was fast approaching today.

Military experts originally expected the big push to begin yesterday, Oct. 10, but it was delayed by the launching of Hitler's peace offensive and his determination to await final rejection by the Allies of his overtures before starting things.

Most competent military observers now have selected the period from Oct. 15 to 25 for commencement of the offensive.

Today's communique, No. 75, declared:

"Enemy patrols involving strong effectives again were repulsed during the night to the south of Saarbrucken and in the region of Pirmasens."

The activity of German infantry in those areas was heavier than ever. These points are heavily wooded, affording excellent cover for patrols ranging in size from a dozen men to full companies of 150 troops, and they are operating continuously.

NAZI DARING INCREASES

The Germans are said to be under instructions to take prisoners at any cost. Consequently their activity is becoming increasingly daring, bringing one patrol, for example, up to within 20 yards of a point on the French line early this morning before it was wiped out by hand grenades.

"It is evident that the Germans are starving for information regarding our positions," one high officer said.

Rain is now a daily occurrence on the front, and scenes reminiscent of World War days are staged as the patrols slither through the mud, their night activities lighted up by the explosion of hand grenades and the bursts of Very bombs.

Thus far, the Germans have been almost completely unsuccessful in their quest for prisoners. The only French taken are a few pilots who have been shot down or who have managed to parachute from crippled machines in German territory.

FRENCH DRIVE AT PATROLS

The light but almost continuous artillery fire of the French is directed against the Maginot line itself.

The French are meeting the enemy patrols with infantry fire at from 1000 to 1200 yards. When the Germans approach closer, the French open up with automatic fire and grenades.

Although the French are reticent to give details, it was learned that German losses in these raids are comparatively heavy, running as high as 20 per cent killed or wounded.

Despite the weather, the Germans are continuing reconnaisance flights, occasionally venturing over the French lines, but mainly staying on their own side and taking only oblique photographs of the French fortifications.

In general, there is a feeling that the increasing German pressure is a definite prelude to a big operation.

Holland Invasion Soon, Ex-Aide Of Hitler Says

LONDON, Oct. 11 (INS)—"Chancellor Hitler will launch a military attack against Holland within the next 30 days," Otto Strasser, once one of the Fuehrer's trusted aides, told the London Daily Mail in an interview published today.

Strasser, now an exile from the Reich, is at Zurich, Switzland, cited a high military source as authority for his statement. He also said, according to the Mail, that Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German air chief, has an aerial plan to break the Anglo-French blockade.

Floods Threaten Siegfried Line

LONDON, Oct. 11 (INS)—Floods in the Rhine river threatened to inundate sections of the Siegfried line of German fortifications, according to a dispatch from Basel published in the Daily Mail today.

The river, already five feet above normal due to heavy rains, is rising steadily and is barely two feet below fortified positions between Freiburg and Offenburg, the dispatch said.

There were no signs of the rains abating tonight, it was reported.

HITLER WAITS ALLIES 'YES OR NO'

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Oct. 11 Adolf Hitler is still awaiting a final, unequivocal "yes or no" answer to his peace proposals before Nazi Germany concludes that there is no alternative to unrestricted war in Europe.

Authoritative German quarters insisted today that in his radio address last night, Premier Edouard Daladier of France had not slammed the door with utmost finality upon the Fuehrer's peace proposals.

On the contrary, it was said Daladier's speech paralleled that of Hitler himself "in its mutual expression of desire for permanent European peace based upon security guarantees."

German spokesmen took the view that Hitler has repeatedly guaranteed the integrity of France, insisting time & again that Germany has no territorial aspirations in the west.

(Editor's Note—In contradistinction to the German attitude, well-informed British and French sources viewed Daladier's speech as a flat rejection, on behalf of Britain as well as France, of Hitler's peace offer)

The German press was that "The final word has not yet been spoken."

Nazis Behead Fifth Spy Within Week

BERLIN, Oct. 11 (AP)—Guenter Haupt, convicted of spying on German defense works for an unnamed foreign country, was beheaded today. He was the fifth spy executed here this week.

REPORT RED TROOPS SLAY POLISH PRIESTS

MOSCOW, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Moscow newspaper Bezbozhnik (The Godless), organ of the anti-religious movement, indicated today that a large number of Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox priests were "liquidated" when Soviet Russian troops marched into White Russia and the western Ukraine in partitioned Poland.

The newspaper asserted that many priests barricaded themselves "with capitalists and Polish officers in Catholic churches and met the Red army with machine-gun fire."

Bitter articles, assailing both Catholic and orthodox priests in the region, accused them of espionage and being in the pay of the Polish government.

The paper praised a Red army soldier who, it said, threw several hand grenades into a group of priests and Polish officers who refused to surrender, killing all of them.

WORLD WATCHES FINLAND

By CAPT. JOHN HOUSTON CRAIGE
U. S. Marine Corps, Retired
(Written especially for Internationals News Service)

(The statements and opinions herein are the private ones of the writer and are not to be construed as reflecting the views of the Navy Dept. or the naval service in general.—Navy Regulations.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (INS)—Dr. Juhu Paasaklvi, Finnis delegate, has gone to Moscow in obedience to Stalin's command, but dispatches from Helsingors state that he has been instructed not to yield an inch of Finland's soil nor an iota of her independence, whatever hreats the Bolshevist dictator may make.

Inhabitants of the tiny Baltic republic are boiling with indignation at the Russian move against their "liberty. Patriotic meelings are being held in towns and villages. The Finns declare that they will die to the last man in defense of their country before they will submit to economic and political rule from Moscow.

The Finlanders are a fighting race and are quite likely to make good their promise to give the Red army a battle. If they put on a tooth-and-nail defense of their country, as they threatened to do, Finland may well become the Belgium of the present war.

If the Finns fight as desperately as did the Belgians, invasion of their country by Soviet forces may prove as big a mistake as did the Kaiser's Belgian campaign in 1914.

Should Stalin move into Finland and the Finns resist, it will set in motion a train of stategic consequnces loaded with dynamits for many of Europe's group. In the first place, Sweden is almost certain to come to the assistance of her Scandinavian kinsmen, the Finlanders.

It isn't only a cass of blood relationship, although the clan-feeling among the Scandinavians is strong. Swedeen knows by 200 years of experience that Russia wants not Finland, but all of the Scandinavian peninsula, including Sweden and Norway.

Since Peter the Great, the Russians have lusted for all-year, ice-free ports on the Atlantic. The Scandinavian nations have such ports, and they possess great commercial fleets besides, which Russia could use. Scandinavia also produces iron ore, of which Russia hasn't enough in the west; nickel, which she needs badly, and copper. And don't forget that the Swedes are fine engineers. They could do much for the Soviets if Communized. Sweden has besides one of the world's finest munitions works.

Nazi Secret Weapon May Not Be 'Bluff'

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11—Hitler's veiled threats to use against the allies a war power which they do not themselves possess, have not been taken seriously in either Paris or London. At least not officially.

But they are taken seriously in at least one quarter in Washington, which this writer is not permitted to reveal.

If what has been told him by a Democrat in a position of great responsibility is true, there may be a resort to frightfulness in the European war that would make the bombing of Warsaw and the slaughter of thousands of women and children a mere picnic.

What would you think of a weapon, or an instrumentality, capable of burning to a crisp any object coming within a range of it of 1000 yards in every direction?

How long could Paris, or London, stand up against such a thing as that?

It is not exactly a war weapon. It is not a poison, not a gas. In one of its forms it is one of the commonest substances, without which human life could not exist. It is cheap.

I am told that as an instrumentality of peace, rather than of war, it could be used to dig a ship canal across Nicaragua at a cost of 50 per cent of the estimated cost of $750,000,000. It is from that angle it has been studied here.

It is an American invention. Has Hitler such a one?

The first intimation that the Nazis possess a new and dreadful weapon of war came from the lips of Hitler in September.

"The moment may come," he said, "when we use a weapon which is not yet known, and with which we could not be attacked. Let us hope that we will not be forced to use this means. It is to be hoped that no one will then complain in the name of humanity."

The British military authorities and scientists have scoffed at the idea that Hitler might posses a new weapon of the deadliness indicated.

But the Germans have been preparing for revenge ever since they were forced to sign on the dotted line at Versailles. They are among the world's greatest chemists and scientists.

Let us hope that Hitler has merely thrown a bluff to terrify his opponents, as ancient Chinese warriors used to don masks to scare the enemy to death.

If he isn't bluffing, here is one who looks for horrors.

Inland Munition Plants Proposed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Senator Norris, (Ind.) of Nebraska, suggested today that the government build munition plants in protected inland areas having adequate power supplies.

Norris told reporters that a number of armament factories might well be constructed in the TVA territory because of the cheap power available there.

Reveal Girl-Mother Of 'Kidnaped' Baby

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., Oct. 11—An unnamed "mystery" girl was revealed today as the real mother of three-year-old Richard Allen Woodbury, child pawn in a strange "kidnaping" tangle brought to light by court action here and in Concord, N. H.

At Concord, Harold Wright, 49, and his cousin, Miss Blanche Almstead, 46, both of Worcester, Mass., were held on a complaint signed by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodbury of Westminster, Vt.

The Woodburys charged that the Worcester couple had taken little Richard with their permission for a two weeks vacation trip in August but had not returned the child.

BOY WITH COUPLE

Wright and Miss Almstead were arrested when police found them asleep in an auto at Hooksett, N. H., early yesterday. The boy was with them at the time.

Held on a technical charge of "inveigling" the Woodbury child out of Vermont, the defendants were handed over to Vermont authorities for court appearance here.

Miss Almstead asserted that she had "as much right to the boy as Mrs. Woodbury," charging that Mrs. Woobury was not the child's mother.

Today, Mrs. Woodbury admitted this, informing officials here that she took little Richard from his own mother, a girl whose name and whereabouts were not divulged.

BOTH CLAIM ADOPTION

Both the Woodburys and the Worcester couple insisted today day they had "legally adopted" the boy pawn in the case.

Mrs. Woodbury, at last report, was understood to wish to press her criminal complaint.

State's Atty. Ernest F. Berry said the defendants, if convicted, would be liable to a sentence of 30 years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Miss Almstead said:

"We have legally adopted little Richard. The Woodburys are unable to care for him properly. We love him, and he likes to be with us. We were just returning to Jamaica Plain, Mass., last night, where my cousin is now working, after going to Lyndonville, Vt., to take out adoption papers when the police surprised us by telling us that we were wanted for kidnaping our boy.

"We have nothing to hide. We can prove our case, and Richard Allen belongs to us now for keeps. The Woodburys never cared for him enough even to pay the $10 necessary to adopt him legally. We talked only two days ago with the child's mother, who is now married again, and she has approved of our having the boy."

Upon the death of her mother, Miss Almstead said, she started to keep house for her cousin because of a crippled leg, caused some years ago by infantile paralysis.

STUBBORN BACKACHE

From Sluggish Kidneys

Bear this in mind through the kidneys and bladder waste, poisons and harmful acids are expelled from the blood.

When kidneys are sluggish and bladder is thus irritated, improper kidney functioning may cause these poisonous acid substances to remain in the blood and affect the entire system. This unnatural condition ofttimes causes stubborn and persistent backache and in such a case a good time-tried diuretic and stimulant such as Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules is called for—don't forget that.

Get a 35 cent box of these grand capsules today. Don't be an easy mark and accept a substitute. Get the pure—the original—and genuine Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules at any drug store in America—look for the Gold Medal on the box.

Actor's Sister Becomes Bride

Miss Josephine Marie Allen, daughter of a well-known theatrical family, was married today at the Mission Church, Roxbury, to Walter E. McHugh of Brookline, son of a Boston contractor.

Miss Allen is the daughter of Joseph Allen, of the Broadway stage, and the sister of screen actor Joseph Allen, Jr., who flew here for the wedding from Hollywood, where he recently completed "All Women Have Secrets" for Paramount.

Recovery Routs Fear Psychology

The electrifying switch of sentiment in the past month has revealed far reaching trade expansion possibilities . . . Psychologically the nation has emerged from the pitch black darkness of fear into the glaring brightness of reason . . .

REVEALED . . . In the light are domestic recovery potentialities heretofore unseen and unappreciated . . . On several recent occasions we have tried to present business recovery for what it was . . . A simple, easily understandable revision of a downtrend to an uptrend . . . With war supplying added stimulus to a sound development antedating conflict by many weeks, many months . . . Prices and various activity indices have been covered . . . All telling a story of justified advances . . . But also revealing some shocking instances of economic unpreparedness . . . To have a complete understanding of the things shrouded by psychological darkness production and commerce must also be studied . . .

IN MAKING . . . A study of these other things the current Brookmire Forecaster is liberally used . . . It goes far beyond inventories, operating schedules and hotly debated price increases . . . And embraces the country's capacity to produce goods . . . to haul traffic . . . to generate power . . . and the many other essentials facilitating progress from recovery to prosperity . . . Deficiencies in each are dramatically played up . . . And the stunning realization that existing equipment and facilities are inadequate is hammered home . . . All this, it is to be noted, at a time when general business was far below normal . . . All men and corporations it seems had lived too long in an atmosphere of depression . . .

OUTSTANDING . . . Individual deficiencies have been uncovered . . . Most of the sort complacency managed to hide effectively during the past year or longer . . . Because it can not be honestly attributed to war the uplift in railway equipment ordering furnishes an ideal example . . . Rolling stock demands have spurred purchasing of cars and locomotives and outlays for track and property maintenance . . . At the same time modernization was exerting pressure for new plant and equipment . . . And the result was an upturn in related heavy industry . . . Which once started, does not end overnight . . .

WHOSE MOVE . . . Is the question stock market bulls and bears are asking one another . . . After weeks of timid pushing back and forth one or the other is soon going to lose patience . . . And then the game will be on in earnest . . . Preliminary skirmishes find the crowd working for higher prices with a slight edge . . . Peace talk, warnings on boom gossip and failure of speculative accounts, as portrayed by brokers' loans, to expand all favored selling . . . Yet a lack of follow through to weak spells finds the list as a whole not too far removed from top levels . . . And the all-important steel group harboring a huge short interest . . . One it is hard to imagine being given a chance to cover at lower prices . . .

COPPER PRICES . . . Which have been the subject of so many boom warnings fail to live up to their reputation . . . When reduced the simplicity of a price chart . . . Such as that used here today . . . The movement up until the middle of September, height of the war excitement, shows red metal values well under 1937's declining price line . . . And very little above the low of 1938 . . . However, the future may be a whole lot more satisfactory . . . Purely as a chart reader the oversigned sumbits such a thought . . . For the "saucer" formation shown between mid-March and mid-September is usually an excellent omen of a good rise to come . . . It is almost as though a situation, this time copper, were scooped clean of distress offerings.

RETAILERS URGED TO GUARD PRICES

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—Retail trade sources said today some manufacturers had attempted to start a practice of "blank check" contracts which would permit increases of prices after the order had been placed and accepted.

Frank M. Mayfield of St. Louis, chairman of the emergency committee of the National Retail Dry Goods Ass'n, urged retailers to "resist strenuously" any such efforts on the part of the manufacturers, in order to protect the buying public from unjustified price increases and to prevent a "vicious upward spiralling of prices."

New Haven to Buy Equipment

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 11 (AP)—Judge Carroll C. Hincks of the Federal District court granted today a petition of the trustees of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad for permission to spend approximately $2,800,000 for equipment in 1940.

The equipment program, largest undertaken by the road since it entered the process of reorganization in 1935, calls for the purchase of 15,000 tons of rail, 250 coal cars, 25 steel cabooses, 10 diesel switch engines and other materials.

N. E. Power Reports Big Output Gain

The New England Power Ass'n reported today that its output of electricity for the week ended Oct. 7 was 50,294,875 kilowatt hours compared with 39,383,587 for the week ended Oct. 8, 1938, a gain of 27.71 per cent.

The association reported, however, that the 1938 output was unusually low as an aftermath of the hurricane.

Freight Up in Year

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)

Pennsylvania Railroad today reported revenue freight carloadings for the week ended October 7 totalled 122,060, compared with 125,096 in the preceding week and 100,919 a year ago.

SPECIALTIES UP IN LAZY MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP) A few specialties managed to get ahead in today's stock market but progress was at an amble rather than a run.

The ticker tape loafed from the quiet opening and price changes were pretty well mixed most of the time.

Up most of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, U. S. Rubber, American Telephone, Western Union, Phelps Dodge, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, duPont, Johns-Manville and Eastman Kodak.

In a narrow range were Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Santa Fe, Consolidated Edison and Montgomery Ward.

Brokers said traders were divided as to the possible results of the German "peace offensive," although they agreed Premier Daladier of France yesterday had seemed to close the door to concord on Herr Hitler's terms. The possibility of further moves which might lead to a bargain was considered by many.

Markets at London, Amsterdam and Paris were firm. Bonds pointed higher and commodities were mixed.

TELEVISION CORP. ELECTS CAMPBELL

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—William B. Campbell, former business manager of Hearst Radio, Inc., was elected executive vice-president of the National Television Corp. of 480 Lexington ave., New York City, according to announcement made today by Mr. C. H. Braselton, president of the corporation.

Mr. Campbell has had wide experience in the radio field as business manager of the Hearst Radio, Inc., European manager of Press Wireless, and with the Radio Corp. of America. He built up the present communications system through which America now receives most of its war news from France, England, Germany, Italy and other European countries.

Mr. Braselton points out that National Television has been one of the pioneers in television development since 1931, with numerous patents granted, and others pending.

Mr. Campbell states that National Television will soon have in production a complete line of television receivers for the home, with many new and special features. Advertising plans for these and other television equipment, now in preparation, will be announced shortly.

Boston Wool Mart Dealings Quiet

Boston wool houses received very few inquiries for wool today. An occasional buyer was in the market only to secure small quantities of wool for special purposes, or to piece out stocks on hand.

CLOTH MARKETS TRADE ROUTINE

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Worth Street gray goods market continued quiet today with traders generally awaiting Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement tomorrow. Only routine business passed at steady prices.

In the rayon market, prices were firm and unchanged. Activity was at a slower pace. Mills were reluctant sellers of plain loom staples due to a large backlog and a scarcity of yarn.

Woolen piece goods markets were affected somewhat by hot weather which tended to curtail retail buying interest.

5 MAYORS PRIMARY VICTORS

Five Massachusetts mayors today had cleared the first hurdle toward re-election by winning their primary fights, while a sixth refused to run.

In a primary marked for the most party by light voting, the chief executives of Worcester, Springfield, Medford, Marlboro and Westfield were chosen party standard bearers for the November elections, while Mayor Dewey Archambault of Lowell was not a candidate.

Mayor John C. Carr won on the Democratic ticket in Medford, but former Mayor John J. Irwin was beaten for the Republican nomination by Rep. Robert P. Campbell by 844 votes.

In Worcester, Mayor William A. Bennett will lead the Republicans against former Mayor John S. Sullivan, Democratic victor.

With Mayor Archambault out of the picture, nominations in Lowell were won by Sen. Thomas Braden and Rep. George T. Ashe.

In a non-partisan primary in Marlboro, Mayor Louis F. Ingalls and ex-Mayor Charles A. Lyons headed a field of seven, with Ingalls holding a margin of nearly 500 votes over Lyons.

Another non-partisan primary, this time in Westfield, saw Mayor Raymond W. Cowing and Mrs. Alice D. Burke topping a field of five, with a slight margin in favor of the mayor over Mrs. Burke.

Mayor Roger L. Putnam swept to an easy victory in Springfield over Alderman Michael W. Albano for the Democratic nomination, while Alderman Howard S. Sanderson squeezed through over Donald M. Macauley on the Republican side by the narrow margin of 800 votes.

N. Y. Auto Show Excursions

Three New Haven railroad excursion trains will carry Bostonians to the 40th anniversary National Automobile Show in New York at reduced rates from Oct. 15 through Oct. 22, when the sleek 1940 car models will be shown in the Grand Central Palace.

The trains will be run on the two Sundays in the span Oct. 15, when the show opens, and Oct. 22, the closing date—and on the intervening Wednesday, it was announced today.

The week-end trains leave South Station at midnight Saturday with the return train leaving Grand Central Station at 12:25 a. m., Monday and arriving at Boston at 6:00 a. m. On Wednesday, the excursions leave Boston at 12:45 a. m., and the return trains reach Boston at 6:50 Thursday morning. The trains will be continued throughout October, the railroad announced.

JOBLESS CLAIMS UP

The State division of Unemployment Compensation today reported 8892 initial claims filed during last week an increase of 20 per cent over the 7399 filed in the previous week.

THE SEA RAIDERS

Dramatic Story of War's Lone Wolves of the Sea

By FRED PERKINS

ACROSS the barren, sun-ravaged rocks and sand of desolate Trinidada island, 700 miles off the eastward bulge of the South American continent, giant land-crabs scuttle.

A fearsome, scavenging army, they hold undisputed possession of beach and ledges. And the waters of Trinidada, fast deepening to unplumbed fathoms of sapphire blue and emerald green, are alive with sharks.

Not even the pirates of the Spanish Main, in a bygone century, cared to use this forbidding island as an ocean haven, hard-pressed as they often were for a remote anchorage.

Yet Trinidada was a rendezvous well suited to the secret and deadly purposes of Imperial Germany's World War sea raiders. Swift, well-armed marine free-booters of an era more modern, more ruthless than that of the buccaneers of old, they found the crab-infested, shark-haunted South Atlantic chart dot a convenient coaling station.

There, in early September of 1914, came the big, spic-and-span, almost new Hamburg-American liner, Cap Trafalgar.

One of the fastest, most luxurious passenger ships of her day, she had been in the River Plata, at Buenos Aires, when war broke out in Europe.

Locked in a hidden compartment of her captain's safe was a copy of the German navy's "Cruiser Handbook," instructing all masters of merchant vessels what their course of conduct should be upon long-awaited arrival of "The Day."

Wireless orders, in code, supplemented the general plan outlined in the "Cruiser Handbook." And the Cap Trafalgar, half coaled but well provisioned, took aboard a hasty cargo of heavy timber props to strengthen her decks for gun emplacements, then slipped to sea.

Off the coast of Brazil, by prearrangement, she met the obsolete German gunboat Eber, which had steamed at forced draught all the way from Capetown, South Africa, to keep the appointment.

FROM the Eber, the Cap Trafalgar received a full armament of four-inch guns, heavy machine guns, one-pound quick-firers, rifles, pistols and hand grenades. She also received trained German navy crews to handle the new weapons.

Equipped now as a formidable menace to Allied merchant shipping, the big three-stack liner first demounted one of her funnels, as a disguise, then headed for Trinidada island to refill her depleted coal bunkers.

Two colliers, one German, one a "neutral" U. S. vessel, hired at a Judas price for this clandestine service, were waiting there for the Cap Trafalgar.

In the lee of the island, the coal ships lashed themselves in turn to the liner's side and transferred their fuel cargos, slowly and laboriously, to her holds.

Too laborious—and far too slow—the work turned out to be. For on the morning of September 14, just after the early breaking of the tropic dawn, the Cap Trafalgar's lookouts saw a menacing smudge of black smoke on the northern horizon.

Tardily aware of his peril, the armed liner's captain shouted the order obviously called for by the situation:

"Cast off those colliers; get up full steam in all boilers!"

It wasn't possible now for the Cap Trafalgar to run. But she needed her engines for the fight that was coming.

By dramatic coincidence, the approaching enemy vessel was another luxury liner, converted to man-of-war role. It was the British Cunarder Carmania, commanded by Captain Noel Grant of the Royal Navy.

Once the pride of the Liverpool New York passenger run, the Carmania had been refitted for battle action even more thoroughly than the Cap Trafalgar.

In a single week's time, she had been armed with eight 4.7-inch guns, ammunition magazines had been installed in her holds, her decks and passenger cabins had been stripped of woodwork, range-finding and fire-control apparatus had been rigged, and her once-palatial dining rooms and lounges had been turned into auxiliary coal bunkers.

SECTIONS of armor plate were bolted over vital sections of the Cunarder. And her bridge and gun stations were protected against splinters by ingeniously fabricated screens of woven manila rope.

Ready as possible for a duel that made history the Carmania was, as she sighted the Cap Trafalgar at Trinidada and steamed to the attack.

Not until the trapped raider finally hoisted the German White Ensign was Captain Grant of the British vessel sure he had a warlike foe to cope with.

A warning shot the Carmania had fired across the bow of the Cap Trafalgar at 8500 yards was returned by a broadside that fell short of the Cunarder by a scant 150 feet.

After that, the two liners, each with a veteran navy fighter on the bridge, came to closer range by gallant mutual consent. And the no-quarter conflict that ensued was the bloodier and more destructive because both the opposed vessels had ample hitting power, but scant defensive armor.

They were like two frontier knife-fighters, duelling to the death with their left hands bound together. Or like one-armed boxers, able to strike but not to guard.

The Cap Trafalgar, her German naval guns out-ranging the Carmania's by an estimated 2000 yards, concentrated her fire on the British liner's bridge, crew deck and batteries.

Her markmanship was deadly and took immediate effect. Soon the Carmenia was afire forward, and her bridge, her range-finding apparatus and her whole navigating machinery were first crippled, then put out of action altogether.

A German shell scored a direct hit on one British battery, disabling the gun and strewing the deck with dead and dying.

The Carmania's wireless was a mass of dangling wreckage, her rigging hung in ruins, her wheelhouse had been penetrated by a glancing shell, her water pressure system was smashed, many ammunition hoists were no longer working, gun decks were knee deep in expended cartridge cases.

But those cartridge cases told a story! A story of grim British pertinacity, British bulldog courage!

Taking terrific punishment, the Carmania had wasted hardly a shot on the Cap Trafalgar's upper decks and superstructure. Instead, by wily, farsighted, cool-headed Captain Grant's most explicit order, the British guns had been pounding, pounding, pounding at the German liner's waterline.

THERE lay the enemy's vital weakness. There was the spot where she couldn't take it.

She was a passenger ship after all, like the Carmania. She wasn't built to withstand high explosive shellfire.

So Capt. Grant hammered away. Already, between broadsides, he could hear the Cap Trafalgar's pumps at work. She was leaking—and leaking badly!

Let her close, if she could. Let her bring her rattling, death-spitting machine guns into play.

Captain Grant still pounded at her midriff, at the line where the hungry sea reached for each successive gap in the thin steel hull-plates.

One British shell, at least, had apparently penetrated the German's engineroom. At the end of the first 60 minutes of the battle, the Cap Trafalgar was in flames. And she was listing heavily to starboard.

Now her guns became silent, one by one, as surviving crew members fought the blaze that threatened to turn her into a raging furnace.

Meantime the German's lethal wounds, on her waterline, had utterly sealed her doom. She was sinking fast—so fast that Capt. Grant of the Carmania finally gave the merciful order:

"Cease firing!"

Far keeled over as she was, the battered, burning Cap Trafalgar could only launch a few of her lifeboats. They lurched perilously down her toppling, 70-foot flank.

How many German officers and crew members escaped with their lives was never learned by the Carmania.

Herself nearly in sinking condition, with her navigating machinery and instruments destroyed, the British liner was hardly able to limp precariously to drydock at Gibralter. That she succeeded in crossing the Atlantic at all was due to the fact that Royal Navy vessels hastened to her aid, patched the worst of her wounds and repaired her steering gear.

TOTAL battle casualties aboard the Carmania were nine killed and 26 seriously wounded. More than 300 direct hits had been scored on her.

Before she turned to leave the scene of the duel—one unequalled in the history of modern warfare—the British liner stood by while the 19,000-ton Cap Trafalgar finally capsized to starboard, heaved and lurched in her death agony, and at last lifted her huge stern and went down by the bow, her White Ensign still flying.

A day long to be remembered in British naval annals was that 14th of September, 1914. Even the sharks, the swarming gray shadows in the sapphire blue, emerald green ocean depths off rocky Trinidada made holiday.

And the giant land-crabs, a fearsome scavenger army, scuttled forth across ledge and beach—to celebrate!

KEEP U. S. OUT OF WAR
—Be Neutral—

WILLIAM GREEN, president of the American Federation of Labor, at the recent Cincinnati convention, rightly foresaw the disastrous consequences to American labor if we enter the European war.

WILLIAM GREEN
Opposes New War

No body of men in the United States has a bigger stake in war or peace than organized labor.

If this country should take part in the catastrophe abroad, organized labor instantly would lose its identity.

All that it has struggled for during half a century would be lost.

It would be in the same position as labor in Russia, Italy and Germany—an appendage of industrial dictatorship.

Mr. Green and the vast army of workers he represents know the penalties that labor paid—both in men and money—in the last war and the ruinous repercussions from that conflict which finally brought on the depression.

Our wage-earners well know that if we "Go to Europe," Europe, with all its suppressions and regimentations, WILL COME HERE.

That must not be!

STATES CONTINUE to compete for industries and increased employment opportunities.

A recent study released by the Public Administration Clearing House of Chicago is enlightening.

Twenty-three states are granting tax immunities to industries, and all but Wyoming and Oklahoma are in the Eastern part of the country.

According to the Clearing House, temporary exemption from taxes is granted newly built or newly located plants by Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Vermont and Virginia.

Alabama concedes a decade of tax immunity to all newly constructed buildings and equipment in a variety of industries.

Similarly, Rhode Island allows towns to waive taxation of a plant if the owner agrees not to raze the building or remove the machinery.

Massachusetts, anxious to know why mills and factories have moved to other States, will not ignore the above-mentioned facts. They will explain the loss of scores of manufacturing establishments and thousands of jobs.

MODEL HUSBANDS are the aim of Dorchester's Grover Cleveland Evening School. Men who cherish desires to go into kitchens and make fancy breads, cakes and desserts are going to learn how. Special classes for their instruction have been formed.

As indicated in the accompanying picture from Good Housekeeping Magazine, the busy housekeeper and the man of the family will henceforth be able to pool their tasks, do them more quickly and find time for theaters, parties and social activity.

TWO COOKS DO NOT SPOIL THE BROTH
Good Housekeeping Magazine Picture Proves It

This will be a realization of the dream of Miss Katharine Fisher, [illegible] of Good Housekeeping Institute, who several months ago [illegible]

"A man may not admit it, but chances are he carries around the secret ambition of becoming a good cook. More and more, men are hanging around the kitchen, eager to learn what goes on, and even trying their hands at several dishes, particularly making salads and broiling meats."

Dolly's Dream

LAST night our dollie had a pleasant dream . . . It came to her as she lay fast asleep . . . her golden head pillowed in violets deep . . . and it was borne upon a white moonbeam.

We know it was a sweet dream, for she smiled . . . as innocently as a little child . . . might smile at some delectable surprise.

True, she forgot her dream when she awoke . . . Picking her up the bright enchantment broke . . . But it was late—two hours beyond sunrise.

And yet her smile lingered the day long . . . and in her heart there danced a little song . . . and there was starlight in her dreamy eyes.

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

IN PAST DECADES all the men with whom Britain engaged in the diplomatic tierce and riposte would have been passed by the membership committee of the gentleman's club which ran England. That gave the British Foreign Office both assurance and a dependable technique in empire building.

In this pattern of international behaviour, the British gentleman became an article of export, and international negotiation became a matter of certain ancient proprieties. This being true, I have an idea that much of the confusion and apparent bewilderment of the British high command, in the last ten years, is due to the fact that the Metternichs, the Talleyrands, the von Moltkes, the von Bernhardis have passed, and unpedigreed, uncertified and largely inexperienced power men have risen to take their places.

IT would seem quite impossible that Sir Samuel Hoare, of Ye Olde Golden Bottel Bank, dating back to the reign of Charles I, could ever have known a man such as Adolf Schickelgrueber, or the scowling, ham-fisted Joseph Dshugaskvili, who came to the chancelleries under the assumed names of Hitler and Stalin.

That, in itself, is embarrassing. A man couldn't get into a good London club under an assumed name. And then there's the chest-beating blacksmith's son, Benito Mussolini, using his own name, to be sure, but given to behaviour which no responsible house committee would sanction.

CHAMBERLAIN MEETS MUSSOLINI AT MUNICH
Is British Culture a Handicap in Modern Diplomacy?

One gets the contrast between British decorum and a world untutored in the ancient rubric of proper behaviour. It is no wonder that Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary, visiting Hitler shortly after Munich, failed in a realistic estimate of Herr Schickelgrueber. He returned and told England:

"On no account must we fall from the height of exultation to which the world was lifted by the Munich peace."

And so it was with Halifax, MacMillan, Chamberlain, Simon, Beaverbrook and all the others of the leaders of British foreign missions to the strange Ammonites and Hittites who behave in an unseemly manner, but who, they hoped to the last, would be all right if you met them half way.

It is rare that one not a public school man has ever penetrated into the de facto government, or inner cabinet, of about 30 men who rule England. The beloved Mr. Chips has helped us get this straight, over here, the public school of England being just the reverse of ours—a school for the sons of gentlemen only.

THIS has given British statesmanship high character and culture, and it has sluiced good brains into the government, but it has isolated their leaders from certain important realities and it has concealed from them many of the political facts of life, and certainly any politician is handicapped in this day and age if he knows and understands only the so-called "nice" people.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—Dr. Harvey Cushing's death on Saturday was a great loss to the nation and a great sorrow to all who knew him. I left Washington by plane and went up to New Haven, Ct., on a noon train in order to be at the funeral.

It seems to me that the unexpected is always happening in life. One never knows from day to day what fate may have in store.

Going round the United States in a week, gives one a feeling of having travelled far and steadily, but I met so many men on the way who seemed to think nothing of travelling from coast to coast several times in the same month, that I feel I should also take it more casually.

I SPENT Monday glued to my desk in the White House, because, with all of Miss Thompson's efforts, there were a great many things waiting for my personal attention. I imagine I shall be catching up on mail most of this week. Holidays usually result in extra work some time.

It seems to me that in California, particularly in San Francisco, one has a sense of interest which everybody takes in the various arts. After seeing the exhibition of old masters and contemporary artists at the World's Fair out there and hearing of various other artistic ventures, I feel I should mention to you the existence of an interesting exhibition in the East.

DR. HARVEY CUSHING
"His Death Was a Great Loss"

There is, at present, at the Yonkers Museum of Science and Arts in Trevor Park, Yonkers, N. Y., an exhibition by contemporary artists, which will be there through the whole month of October. It includes both oil paintings and water colors.

Anyone having the time to stop on the way in or out of New York City, will find this a most interesting exhibition, for there are many of our best known American artists included in the list of those who have sent their work.

I ALSO HAVE a most interesting letter telling me about a new musical organization. It is called "The Little Symphony Society of Philadelphia." This group is dedicated to the purpose of creating more opportunities for young American artists by providing excellent accompaniment for outstanding soloists who wish to make their debut in a great music center, by offering guest-conducting experience to rising directors of merit and by furnishing an available medium for promising composers to hear their works performed by a fine professional orchestra.

This should mean an opportunity for young Americans to be heard, which has often been difficult. I hope the support will come from many parts of the country and not only from Philadelphia, for it is thrilling to help in the development of young American artists.

HOOVER TO APPEAR IN NEW MOVIE

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—"Herbert Hoover will become a movie actor," a film official assures at the Cotton Club. "For the movie, 'Edison, the Man,' they're reproducing the 50th anniversary dinner given to Edison at Dearborn, in 1929—at which Hoover spoke. Arrangements are being made for the former President to make that speech before the camera, as part of the movie" . . . "Yes, I'll continue to appear at the Aquacade," Johnny Weissmuller states at the Stork, "but I won't do any swimming. The doctors told me not to do any more swimming" . . .

"When they left, one of the officers told Sam, wistfully: 'Just once, I'd like to see a machine gun like that'" . . . "Judy Canova was just rushed to the hospital," one of her colleagues states at Tony's . . . "Donald Livingston, the Glamour Boy, has had to leave his job here for a few days," the headwaiter explains at Leo and Eddie's, "because of all unglamorous things, he has chickenpox" . . . "I saw H. "J. P. MORGAN told one of my friends that he is as much confused as anybody else, about what's happening in Europe," an industrialist reveals at Larue's. "Morgan said that he is permitted to phone the Bank of England now—but only concerning international banking problems. He had better information in 1915—because he was there then. But now, said Morgan, it's a question of his trying to outguess the Bank of England."

"THE FIRST American movie which Russia has purchased in a few years is Deanna Durbin's '100 Men and a Girl,'" an agent reports at the Rainbow Room. "They look upon it as good propaganda, because it features a co-operative symphonic orchestra" . . . "The White House received the Iroquois message long before it was officially announced," a Washington executive explains at the Martinique. "The original intention was to keep it quiet, but the story leaked out, and so the announcement had to be made, lest criticism ensue if something really happened to the boat."

AMERICA'S CO-FIRST ACTRESS, Katharine Cornell, stepped out last night with Moss Hart, one-half of America's foremost popular playwriting team . . . They supped at the Mayfair at a distance from the ringside and unannounced . . . Hart's admiration for Miss Cornell rings out in the great comedy, "The Man Who Comes to Dinner," which he wrote with George S. Kaufman . . . He and his collaborator call her "Kit" in their play, and refer to her by indirection as our leading star . . . I think the admiration must indeed be mutual . . . Not in the memory of our oldest ringsiders has Miss Cornell been sighted in a Boston nightclub . . . It may be deduced that Playwright Hart's place on Miss Cornell's list of preferred persons must be near the top . . . You may be interested in knowing the "request songs" Benny Fields sang last night for these two of our first sophisticates. The Hart request was for "Melancholy Baby" and "Broadway Lullaby" two of the hokiest bits of native folksong . . . Miss Cornell's request was "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Broadway Lullaby" . . Minstrelman Fields, by the way, sings "Melancholy Baby" as effectively as always. This means that no one sings it better.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Johnny Orlando, Jr., eight pounds one ounce, has arrived at Charlesgate Hospital, and the Red Sox trainer, the babe and Mrs. Orlando (Joan Parrish) are doing nicely . . . Little Johnny timed his arrival neatly—coincident with announcement of the Red Sox cut in the World Series loot . Johnny Sr., gets a half-share . . . Evelyn Winsor, the Dorchester lass who was "Miss Boston" of a newspaper ball last year, is home from Hollywood—disappointed . . . Vick Knight, who is press-agenting Eddie Cantor's engagement at the Boston, wrote both words and music of the hit-song "Melancholy Mood" . . . It was the "most performed" song last week . . . Very torchy—the song, its composer says his wife was his inspiration. He thought it up while they were separated briefly for the first time in 13 years of matrimony.

YOURS TRULY WAS UNABLE to view "You Can't Take It With You." But he had a chance last night to see another Kaufman-Hart masterpiece, "The Man Who Is Supposed to Behave Like Alexander Woollcott" . . . "You Can't Take it With You" couldn't have been better . . . This new one is too good . . . Telling the masters, Kaufman and Hart, how to fix a spot in a show is like advising Mayor Kane of Woburn about hitting the front page . . . Nevertheless, the play goes temporarily stover Boy when Whiteside and Banjo talk about the outrage Whiteside has perpetrated in aborting Maggie's love life . . . All they need do is right the wrong the way they do it . . . And must mousey Miss Sedley (no clue to the plot there) have as gruesome a past as she is given? . . . Only an inspired final curtain pulls the audience back into a mood receptive to comedy . . . But the play is tremendous.

FORMER GOVERNOR CHARLES E. HURLEY keeps a claim to the affections of most of the newspapermen. In spite of his years of public service, no member of any local staff recalls as much as a single "beef" on a story by the Saltonstall predecessor . . . And he was taking punches—clean but hard—at several stages of the game.

FILMS WIN THOMAS, FAMED BARITONE

By Louella O. Parsons

John C. Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11—John Charles Thomas has finally succumbed to the movies. The world-famous baritone will be starred in "Kingdom Come," a new novel by Adela Rogers St. John, due to make its appearance as a serial in Cosmopolitan Magazine. Thomas has never paid much attention to his calories and is therefore a little portly for a screen hero, but he should worry when he can break records, as he did when he appeared here at the Philharmonic last season to a box office of $44,000.

At any rate, Mr. Thomas has capitulated and will make his first picture for the Producers' Corporation of America, a new company, launched under the leadership of four young Hollywood veterans, George Green, president; Carl Winston, treasurer; Howard Levi, treasurer, and Harry Sokol, secretary. Production is slated for December.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Wedding bells ring Sunday for Frank Kilduff and Toni Anderson. He is a local praise agent and she was formerly soloist with Ted Weems' orchestra; Eleanor Powell has picked up her romance with Capt. (Pilot) Teague where she left off a few months ago; the Ralph Wheelwrights have adopted a cunning year-old girl, whom they are calling Phinie Louise; Mrs. Jack Oakie is in the Cedars of Lebanon with a badly impacted wisdom tooth; the Dorothy Lamour-Robert Preston romance continues to be the hottest romance of the moment—that is if dancing at the Cocoanut Grove, dining at Victor Hugo's and seeing each other seven nights a week means anything in Hollywood.

MRS. JEAN BELLO, who is so like little Harlow since she shed so many pounds, dining in a ringside seat with Heinie Brand at Slapsy Maxie's; Helen Gilbert and Lew Ayres are acting as if they mean it; Roland Drew planing East to make personal appearance with "Hitler, Beast of Berlin"; the Henry Fondas, who, for over a week, didn't leave their home because of kidnaping threats, dining at the Beverly Derby.

COBINA WRIGHT, JR., and Jimmy Bryant at the La Maze getting a look at Alice Marble, Cobina's competition; Rochelle Hudson and her bridegroom, Hal Thompson, Ida Lupino and Louis Hayward others at ringside tables; Frances Robinson stepping out with Whitney Derham; Jeanette MacDonald has gained back the eight pounds she felt she needed on a ginger ale-ice cream soda diet.

DAILY STORY — Wise Advice

MRS. BARNES was a sweet-faced, motherly woman. She loved me dearly, like a daughter, I am sure.

I introduce Mrs. Barnes first because she is the important person in this story—more important even than my fiance, Dan Greenwell.

Dan and I were to be married. The happy event was three weeks distant.

That was before I made an unannounced visit to Dan's dental office. The blonde attendant had left for home. I walked in, saw no one, but heard voices in the inner office.

OF COURSE, I looked in, staggered and almost fainted. There, before my very eyes, was Dan with his arms around a most attractive girl!

They didn't see me.

Five minutes later I was in Mrs. Barnes' sitting room. "The wedding will never take place," I vowed. "I could not become the wife of any man so lacking in honesty. I shall return Dan's ring tonight."

Mrs. Barnes listened patiently until my anger had spent itself. Then she counselled:

"Mary, you'll do nothing of the kind. Say nothing at all to Dan. Let him explain. I'm sure he will—if you give him time."

At long last came the day of the ceremony. Mrs. Barnes was helping me to dress. Suddenly I became hysterical.

"I won't go through with it," I screamed. "I'll tell Dan now. I could never trust him. Every time he left the house I would be haunted by the vision of another woman."

Mrs. Barnes chose to ignore my outburst. Suddenly she glanced out the window. I followed her gaze.

Dan was coming up the walk. On his arm was the girl I had seen in the office.

THEY CAME IN, Dan and the girl. Dan clasped my wrist affectionately. And the girl threw her arms about me.

And then I learned. The girl was Dan's sister from Philadelphia. She had come to Boston three weeks before and at her own expense furnished an apartment for us.

She wanted it to be a complete surprise—and it certainly was.

Dan and I were married, and his sister was my bridesmaid.

LISTEN, WORLD! — By Elsie Robinson

SHOULD ANY married woman, whose husband earns $800 per year or more, be refused a job . . . Dismissed if she has one? Should married women be barred from Civil Service examinations?

Should all female workers, married or single, be eventually ousted from positions which unemployed men might fill?

Foolish theories? Not in the least. These are actual propositions, all part of a nation-wide campaign, designed to raise Cain with the Mrs. pay check. Interested. Then you should have read a recent issue of a popular magazine in which was Clara Belle Thompson's and Margaret Lukes Wise's amazing article, "SHALL WE FIRE THE MARRIED WOMEN?"

MAYBE YOU'VE thought that this agitation against the married-woman worker was exclusively masculine. Guess again! Women, themselves, are taking up the fight against their laboring sisters. Here are quotes from the Misses Thompson and Wise which should give this supposed democracy a considerable pause:

"At this very minute, in 40 States, women cannot teach school if they are married. Bills to prohibit or restrict the right of married women to be employed have been introduced in 15 State Legislatures: California, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin."

These other bills touch every conceivable form of work at which women are now employed.

"Well, what of it?" many will ask. "Suppose such laws do throw women out of work. If they put men in their place, everything'll be jake."

BUT ARE THEY? AND WOULD "EVERYTHING BE JAKE" IF WE TOOK THE MRS. OFF THE PAY-ROLL?

"They are not and it wouldn't!" cry Thompson & Wise, Inc. "Of the 11,000,000 women in the U. S. A. who are now gainfully employed, 3,000,000 are married. Let's fire the 3,000,000 and see if we have 3,000,000 jobs for unemployed men. The plain fact is—THE JOBS DON'T SWAP!

Over a million of the married women are engaged in domestic or personal service. Would firing half a million cooks (beauticians, dressmakers, nursemaids, etc.) help half a million stevedores?"

Step by step, statistics show that firing our women workers would be no panacea for our national ills.

Symphony Shifts Program

The program which is to open the 59th season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Serge Koussevitzky's direction, in Symphony Hall Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, has been changed in order.

The concerts will open with d'Indy's Symphonic Variations for "Istar," and continue with Debussy's "The Sea"; Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony No. 3, instead of beginning with Beethoven's "Leonore" No. 3 and concluding the program.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11—Aside from being the best tonic in months for depression, "Ninotchka" is reasonably sure to be an antidote for Communism. So cleverly has Ernst Lubitsch poked fun at the Reds that it's sure to let them see themselves as others see them and to keep possible converts from U. S. S. R. propaganda.

As for Garbo, well, just wait until you see her in her drunk scene. Maybe that's too inelegant a word for a lady who imbibes champagne too freely. And as for her laugh, it's the best sign she is really human.

So it's not surprising that M-G-M wants Lubitsch to pick out her stories and direct her again as soon as possible. Hear the Communists aren't too pleased with Melvyn Douglas, Garbo and the rest who had a part in this movie.

When Maxie Rosenbloom told me his bride, the former Muriel Fader, was smart he spoke the truth. I knew it as soon as I met her. She taught child psychology, speaks French fluently and is a college graduate. Moreover, she is very pretty.

Her mother, who tried to separate her daughter from the pugilist-comedian, has so far relented she is furnishing their home as a wedding gift. Maxie called his mother in New York after the ceremony saying she wouldn't take it too hard. But Ma is nothing if not practical. Her first words were: "There's my check? I didn't receive it this week."

It's no idle rumor that Jules Stein, brains of the Music Corporation of America, is thinking of turning movie producer. But guess again if you think Jules has a musical up his sleeve for his debut. On the contrary he is interested in sponsoring the "Scattergood Baines" series with none other than Guy Kibbee as the lovable philosopher.

RKO planked down $100,000 for the rights to the Clarence Budington Kelland stories, which, as Damon Runyon says, is no small potatoes. Guy Kibbee is a natural for the starring role—he is Scattergood and let me say after "Babes in Arms" he is back in his stride.

"Somewhere in England" is the title of a new story which Bill Pierce (assistant to Charlie Rogers) and Mildred Barish wrote after they saw the filmed scenes of little ones being taken from their parents to be sent to an unknown destination. Rogers will make it with many of the youngsters in "The Star Maker" including Gloria Cartet and Mary Thomas.

Metro has also bought "For the Glory of It" by Charles Kenyon and Charles Belden based on the same idea and that studio is searching for a little English boy to play the stellar role.

ELSIE ROBINSON writes the woman's viewpoint, discusses every-day affairs and problems regularly in the Boston American.

JACQUELINE NASH shares starring honors with the noted Jascha Heifitz in "They Shall Have Music," opening Thursday, Oct. 19, at Loew's State and Orpheum. Co-feature on the new Loew's bill will be "The Dancing Co-Ed," starring Artie Shaw and his orchestra. These two mark the screen debut of Heifitz and Shaw.

'HONEYMOON IN BALI' OPENS ON MET'S SCREEN TOMORROW

BRENDA JOYCE, recently discovered in "The Rains Came," is Richard Greene's heart interest in "Here I Am A Stranger," which comes to the Paramount and Fenway screens tomorrow.

Carolyn Lee In Cupid Role

The co-starring Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray in Paramount's "Honeymoon in Bali," are said to top their entertaining "Cafe Society" of last year.

"Honeymoon in Bali" is to have its New England premiere on the Metropolitan screen tomorrow, in company with "Pride of the Bluegrass," race track story with Edith Fellowes and James McCallion.

Akim Tamiroff, as a matchmaking window-washer, is reported to have one of his best roles in "Honeymoon in Bali," Carolyn Lee, four-year-old newcomer to the screen, is rumored as another contender for picture-stealing honors.

Edward Griffith directed from an original screen play by Virginia Van Upp and Jeff Lazarus was in charge of production.

"Honeymoon in Bali" is the story of a self-sufficient and beautiful career girl who falls in love with an irresponsible and equally self-sufficient young man. Little Miss Lee has a lot to do with their changed viewpoint on love.

Gordon Hillman, who, before he became an outstanding magazine writer, was the Record's movie critic, is to be represented on the Paramount and Fenway screens, starting tomorrow, with "Here I Am A Stranger."

This Twentieth Century-Fox release has been enthusiastically received elsewhere. It is the story of a boy who suddenly grows up and finds himself a stranger in the superficial world of wealth and sham to which he is born until he meets and loves Brenda Joyce. Miss Joyce is the interesting new discovery who played opposite George Brent in "The Rains Came."

The co-feature, "Hawaiian Nights," is a musical romance featuring Johnny Downs, Mary Carlisle and Constance Moore.

MADELEINE CARROLL and four-year-old Carolyn Lee have quite a struggle over Fred MacMurray's affections in Paramount's "Honeymoon in Bali," opening tomorrow on the Metropolitan's screen.

'Hot Mikado' Here Nov. 6

Michael Todd's "Hot Mikado" is remaining at the World's Fair Hall of Music until Tuesday, October 31, at the request of Fair officials, a circumstance which will delay the show's Boston Opera House opening until Monday, November 6.

Before beginning its tour, "Hot Mikado," starring Bill "Bojangles" Robinson, will be presented on an N. B. C. television broadcast and will be the first all-colored musical show ever to be presented via this new entertainment medium.

The original Broadway cast will be seen here.

Late Show Tonight On Gayety's Stage

Gayety Theater ushers in Columbus Day with a special midnight show tonight, starting at 11:30 and featuring dancer Nadine Marsh and comic Vic Plant.

These co-starring entertainers are assisted by Gladys Clark, Florence Ellis, Viola Spath, Rose Heatherly, Muriel Brooks, James Walters and Mack Dennison. Jack Shaw and Eddie Yubell, singers, are other featured performers.

IN THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

Lincoln Play on Students' Lists

Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize play of 1939, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," has been made compulsory reading in many public schools, say the Playwrights' Company.

It is expected that by the end of the year the play in which Raymond Massey will be seen at the Boston Opera House for one week only, starting Monday, October 23, will be read and studied by a majority of schools throughout the country.

Pinanski Heads Theater Group

Samuel Pinanski, Paramount operator in New England, has been re-elected president of Allied Theaters of Massachusetts, an MPTOA unit.

The only changes in the list of officers were the substitutions of Fred Greenway and Harry McDonald of Loew's, Inc., and RKO respectively, for former representatives of those circuits, who are now elsewhere.

Jack Devlin of Loew's was re elected vice-president; Stanley Sumner, Cambridge exhibitor, treasurer, and Joseph Brennan, secretary and business manager.

'Nurse Edith Cavell' Previews Tonight

"Nurse Edith Cavell," story of the World War's famous martyred nurse, is to be previewed tonight at the Keith Memorial Theater at 7 and 10 p. m. The regular week's engagement opens tomorrow, Columbus Day.

Anna Neagle, Britain's outstanding film actress whose "Victoria the Great" was enthusiastically received here, made her initial Hollywood-sponsored appearance in this RKO Radio story of the inspiring career of Edith Cavell who died at the hands of a military firing squad for aiding war fugitives to escape from the combat zone.

The story closely adheres to the facts of the famous case which shocked the world. The dramatic moments during the trial sequence follow the actual events and the actual speeches, as contained in the official war records.

Particularly interesting are the scenes showing how Nurse Cavell and her devoted followers obtained genuine passports for their wounded fugitives and transported them to the Dutch border through swarms of guards endeavoring to catch them.

Importantly cast are Edna May Oliver, May Robson, ZaSu Pitts, Sophie Stewart, Mary Howard, H. B. Warner, George Sanders, Rex Downing, Bert Roach, Gustav von Seyffertiz, Lucian Prival, Robert Coote and Frank Reicher.

Herbert Wilcox produced and directed "Nurse Edith Cavell" for RKO Radio from a screen play by Michael Hogan.

The second feature, "The Day The Bookies Wept," is also an RKO Radio release. It features Joe Penner in a story depicting the experiences of a group of New York taxi-drivers who evolve a scheme to beat the racetrack bookmakers.

The Dionne Quintuplets in their latest starring short feature, "Five Times Five," in which they celebrate their fifth birthday in the company of the world's most famous story-teller, Alexander Woollcott, is supplementary feature of the program.

Journeying all the way to the Dionne girls' nursery in Callander, Ontario, Woollcott appears in the film as the new-found friend of the famous five. He also acted as script writer and commentator. He joins them in a game of hide-and-seek in the picture and allows himself to be pushed around by two of the girls in their favorite playground swing.

JUDY WINS FAME IN NEW FILM

HOLLYWOOD Oct 11 (AP)—Judy Garland woke up today an established movie star. Two things proved it

First, her footprints were in the cement before Grauman's Chinese theater, along with those of threescore of filmdom's greatest.

Second, critics were unanimous and lavish in the acclaim of (M-G-M's) "Babes in Arms," her co-starring musical with Mickey Rooney, premiered last night. Coming on top of her triumph in "The Wizard of Oz" it puts the petite Judy definitely in the front rank of celluloid celebrities.

It's a story of the offspring of vaudeville's great, showing their talent when the old folks fail. Such veterans before the footlights as Grace Hayes, Irene Franklin, Harry Fox, Patsy Moran, Rube Demarest and Nedly Edwards have parts.

But it's essentially a picture which spotlights youth. Mickey, best of juvenile clowns, is at his peak. His takeoffs on Clark Gable and Lionel Barrymore are highlights. And Judy, whose golden voice has been a thing of joy to moviegoers for several years, demonstrates that she capably can handle the acting end of the business as well.

Busby Berkeley, the director, tops off the show in typically Berkeley style with an extravagant finale, "God Country," musically and patriotically stressing the advantages of life in America.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

AMATEUR THEATRICALS, knitting, petit point, bridge lessons, etc., have all had their turns as hobbies . . . and the latest is lessons in first aid . . .

No one knows exactly whether the war scare or skiing casualties is behind it but every Monday evening a crowd of young marrieds out Dover and Medfield way get together for classes in first aid in the Medfield Town Hall . . .

The course has become so fashionable that no one ever thinks of making a date for Monday evenings, except for dinner parties to precede the class . . . and the "students" include such popular young couples as Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson, Jr., the David Cheevers, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Wells, Jr., the Talbot Bakers, Daniel Codmans, Francis Sargents, Robert Leesons and the Thomas Whitesides . .

First of Fashion Series

EVEN INDIAN SUMMER weather doesn't prevent Milady from serious contemplation of fashions for crisp, snappy days to come and the Ritz-Carlton dining room was packed for the first of a series of Tuesday fashion luncheons . . . Mrs. Augustus Goodwin came in from Hamilton to lunch with a friend at a table for two—her smart black wool dress made with deep cuffs of burgundy red, and silver foxes draped over her shoulders . . .

Mrs. Theodore Brown of Milton lunched with Mrs. Harris Nelson who wore a cool looking black dress with white embroidered collar and cuffs . . . Mrs. Mrown's navy ensemble was brightened by a white flower turban and a gold sheer wool dress . . . At a nearby table Mrs. Francis V. Hart of the Hotel Somerset was hostess at a small party in honor of Lois Elliman, the Gotham society girl who is singing at the Balinese Room . . . A round mink-trimmed turban topped Miss Elliman's blonde curls and she wore a black velvet suit with a vividly striped lame blouse . . .

Also watching the parade of glamorous evening gowns, coats and suits, were Mrs. Alfred McIntyre, Mrs. Harold G. Kern who wore a black suit with a small round blue collar and a tiny black hat with a chenille snood over her blonde hair, Mrs. Charles Stockton who brightened her pale gray wool costume with a scarlet hat, bag and gloves, and Mrs. Marion Clark Emmet in a blueish gray wool dress with bows adorning the pockets . . .

MRS. WILLIAM HUNT (Rosamond Pier), a recent bride and one of the Junior League's outstanding artists, is one of the committee planning the first art exhibit of the season which will open at the League's Gallery, Oct. 24 . . . Mrs. Franklin T. Hammond, Jr., is chairman of the art committee which also includes Mrs. Robert Ladd, Mrs. William Read, Lydia Evans, Elizabeth Reece, Mrs. Albert Thorndike, Priscilla Hedge, Gretchen Thompson, and Margaret Farnsworth . . .

Nancy Smith Makes Debut Tonight

THE WESTON GOLF CLUB, which has been beautifully redecorated since the fire which destroyed it last winter, is an appropriate setting for Nancy Putnam Smith's formal debut ball this evening, since it was built on the original estate of her great uncle, Robert Winsor . . .

Nancy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Abbot Smith, will preside over a large dinner for the ushers and some of her intimate friends before receiving all the guests at the dance . . . She is wearing the same cream white slipper satin gown with green accessories in which she was presented to her family's friends at the tea given by her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Gale last week.

NANCY NYE, Vincent Club and Junior League member, whose blonde hair and peaches and cream complexion were a perfect foil for some of the fetching fall costumes she modelled at the fashion luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton yesterday. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Nye of Chestnut Hill.

Brookline Girl Bride

On their return from a Honolulu honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Rothwell Baldwin, whose marriage was a recent brilliant event out in Brookline's Church of St. Mary of the Assumption, will make their home in Brookline.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. J. Splaine performed the ceremony which was followed by a reception at Brae Burn Country Club.

Winifred Randall was maid of honor for the former Miss Mc Carthy, whose bridesmaid group included Sally Beck, Dorothy Lannon, Marie McCue and Mrs. Morton Whipple. John Hove was best man for the bridegroom.

Mrs. Baldwin, the former Marion Randall McCarthy, is the daughter of Mrs. George McCarthy of Beason st., Brookline. She attended Chestnut School, Wellesley College and Katharine Gibbs School.

B. C. Grads At Breakfast

Fifth annual communion breakfast of Worcester's Boston College Club will be held next Sunday in Francis G. Kane Post Hall, Parish street, following nine o'clock mass in St. Peter's Church.

Arrangements are in charge of Francis A. Murphy, assisted by Frank P. Carey, Arthur J. Laddy George Condon and Paul Gaughran.

A feature of the meeting will be election of officers. The club is now headed by John J. Mahoney with Paul Keene, vice-president; Charles J. Leonard, secretary and Edward F. Murphy, treasurer.

Among the outstanding guests invited to the communion breakfast are Rt. Rev. Richard J. Haberlin V. G., pastor of St. Peters Church, Rev. John J. Long, S. J., Dean of Boston College; Rev. Francis Low, S. J., faculty adviser of the Alumni Association, and Hon. Francis J. Roland, president of the Boston College Alumni Association.

Dr. Eddy's Question Box

Tested and Approved by the Good Housekeeping Bureau

HOW IS TOOTH POWDER TESTED? | WHAT FOODS CONTAIN CALCIUM?

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY

Director of the Homemaking Bureau

How do you determine whether a toothpaste or tooth powder is satisfactory for use?

I. F. T.

Practically all toothpastes or powders have two classes of substances in common. First, what we call, correctly or incorrectly, substance, which may or may not be used. Second, an abrasive of some sort to remove sticky particles from the surface of the enamel. There may be other ingredients, giving the product special values, but these two are the main ingredients.

Our chemical analysis shows us what the detergent is, and the presence or absence of any harmful substance. Our scratch test, after rubbing of a glass surface with the product in a machine devised for the purpose — establishes whether the abrasive material is going to scratch or merely polish the tooth enamel.

The microscope is also useful in detecting the particle size of the abrasives and the presence of sharp-edged particles in the mixture. In brief, we make sure that the product contains nothing which if swallowed in the ordinary process of tooth cleansing will be harmful; also that the product truly cleans and does not scratch the tooth surfaces.

Fruits and Vegetables Are Your Answer

I can not drink milk: what other good sources of calcium can I substitute for it in my diet?

F. E. G.

Vegetables and fruits provide satisfactory amounts of calcium, and it would be possible to get your gram a day without use of milk by eating generous helpings of these foodstuffs. The following table illustrates the relative distribution of calcium in milk and in some of our fruits and vegetables.

Foodstuffs	P. C. of Calcium
Milk	120
Spinach	067
Dried Apricots	065
Carrots	036
String Beans	030
Oranges	025
Lettuce	012
Green Peas	028
Asparagus	020

"Does mixing fresh orange juice and grapefruit juice destroy any of the healt' properties of either?

Mrs. L. S. T.

There is nothing about orange juice and grapefruit juice which makes one harmful to the other when they are mixed. You will get the full benefit of the food values of each in direct proportion to the amount used.

BUTTERED CARROTS WITH BROCCOLI

(Tested by Good Housekeeping Institute)

INGREDIENTS

2 bunches carrots
¼ c. melted butter or margarine
2 lbs. broccoli

METHOD OF PREPARATION

Scrape and scrape the carrots in strips 2 inches long. Cook in boiling salted water until tender, about 20 to 25 min., then drain, and add ¼ c. of the butter. Remove the leaves and the lower part of the stalk from the broccoli and wash. Cook until tender, about 15 to 25 min., drain and add the remaining butter. Arrange the carrots in the center of a large platter or chop plate with the broccoli around them. Serves 6 to 8. To serve 3 or 4, make half this recipe.

SERVE with cold sliced meat, leaf baked potatoes, chocolate pudding and coffee for dinner.

Governor To Open Show

Governor Leverett Saltonstall, an ardent hunting enthusiast and horse lover, will officially open the 12th annual Boston Horse Show at the Commonwealth Armory, tomorrow evening, which has been designated as Governor's Night.

He will view the show from the box of Colonel and Mrs. Philip L. Brown whose guests will also include General and Mrs. Daniel Needham, and General and Mrs. Roger Eckfeldt.

Spend Your 'Thank You'

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—Upon leaving the restaurant the other evening, the waitress said goodnight to us. A (the man) didn't reply, but B (the girl) did. A said that it was unnecessary to answer and B said that the waitress, being as human as anyone else, deserved a reply. Who was correct?

2—A says that a waiter is employed to serve you and should not be thanked for any other service extended. B, having dropped her napkin, and having had the waiter replace it with a clean one, thanked him for this service and claimed it was the correct thing to do. A says that when a waiter offers you bread, or refills your cup of coffee, it isn't necessary to thank him. B says that it might not be absolutely necessary, but it is a gracious gesture. Who is correct?

3—A and B are on a crowded street-car. A gentleman rises and offers his seat to B, which A acknowledges by raising his hat and saying "Thank you"; this B also acknowledges with a smile and a "Thank you." A says it isn't necessary for B to thank the gentleman, inasmuch as the thanks should come through A. Who is correct.

M.

1—B is humanly and delightfully right in her attitude about a gracious acknowledgment of the good night of the waitress. It was distinctly ungraceful and unmannerly of the man not to return this goodnight.

People who are "accustomed," whose hearts and spirits are kindly tuned to the hearts and spirits of others, would automatically acknowledge a greeting of this kind, no matter of what station in life the other person is. It's so easy to do this, to sweeten the way of life. And why be a Pharisee and "walk on the other side?"

2 B is again a kind and mannerly person, charmingly spending the "Thank you" that is made to be spent gallantly and prodigally. Why hoard these pleasant words, or why reserve them for special occasions and for special persons? Thank Heaven this is one thing we don't have to budget!

3 The man should acknowledge this courtesy by raising his hat and saying "Thank you," and the woman should bow graciously and say "Thank you."

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I plan to serve a fish cocktail, but do not have cocktail forks. Would it be all right to use salad forks?

E.

I believe that you would be worried about the size of the salad forks if you serve them with a fish cocktail in a glass that is appropriate for a fish cocktail. I think this might be awkward for the guest to use.

So, since you have no cocktail forks, I suggest that you serve the fish cocktail on one or two small leaves of lettuce, on a small plate (say a six-inch plate, perhaps a bread and butter plate, or a tea-plate), and then the salad forks will be of appropriate size.

Cluster Pleats on Knit Suit

ARE YOU tired of hearing us rave about the really flattering lines knit skirts feature these days? Well . . . once more . . . and here is the very newest version. Cluster pleats, than which there is nothing finer for any figger, are the proud boast of this new suit, a trifle militaristic in the Creed manner. Nice shoulders, with uniform-like epaulet pockets, and a simple, but-ton-down front jacket. You may have knitting directions just by writing to Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Boston American, and inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

You Can Be Beautiful

"Out, Curs'd Spot!"

By ARLINE GOULD

THERE'S NOTHING much after than a sprinkling of coppery flecks over the bridge of a retrouse nos . . . they're pennies from heaven then, and just as individual as a pt dimple. But when they spread until you look like a feminine counterpart of the famous "Alfalfa" boy comedian . . . then you do have a problem on your hands.

Or say that you have a marvelous new nekkid frock, and the lines of your shoulders and arms are too good to hide . . . and in spite of all your summertime efforts to stay under a beach umbrella, big coppery spots disfigure your luminously pale skin . . . because usually the skin of folks with freckly tendencies is really so fair and fine that it can be unbearably lovely . . . then you too are the person for whom we offer a certain solution.

No pun intended, but there is a bland white solution which has been known to vanquish the most definite case of "I was born with them" freckles.

It comes in three strengths — single, double and triple. And the third is NOT to be used on the face, but on the arms, shoulders, or wherever. The first is nicely mild and may be just the one you want. It's fine for the most sensitive, fragile-as-orchid-petals skin.

When you've determined the strength for you, go ahead and say "out, curs'd spot" to anything . . . freckles, tan, moth spots or pimples. The application is simple, a swabbing, night and morning, with a pledget of cotton.

To learn about this remarkable triple-type freckle removing solution, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5.30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Miss Maguire To Wed

At a 10 o'clock ceremony tomorrow morning in St. John's Church in Winthrop, Mary Alice Maguire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Maguire, will become the bride of Edward F. Kelley of Arlington. Rev. Norbert Maginnis will officiate at the ceremony which will be followed by breakfast and reception at the Copley-Plaza.

The bride, who is a prominent member of the Proparvulis Club, will have Mrs. Edward Becherer of West Roxbury, the former Grace Dalton, as her matron of honor and Dorothy Potter of Fitchburg as maid of honor. Marion Grady of Somerville and Aimee Brown of Orient Heights will serve as bridesmaids.

George Kelley of Arlington will be best man for his brother.

Following a wedding trip to Virginia and Washington, the couple will make their home in Belmont.

Miss Maguire, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Maguire, was graduated from Lesley Kindergarten School. Mr. Kelley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Kelley of Arlington.

Smith Alumnae Plan Talks

Mrs. James E. Mountz of Weston is chairman of the group of Smith College alumnae working for the success of a series of literary lectures to be given this fall under auspices of the Smith College Club of Boston.

The first lecturer will be William Lyon Phelps, John Hancock Hall, Oct. 27. Assisting on the committee are Mrs. Osborne Earle, president of the club; Mrs. Philip Richardson, Mrs. Hartwell Pond, Mrs. Gordon Mackay Morrison, Mrs. Arthur T. Love And Marriage

Fickle Man

DEAR MISS IRFAX:

I met a yog man about six months ago, and about three hours after he met me he kissed me. I saw him again later, and he gave me the impression that he cared for me. Then I didn't see him again, but couldn't forget him.

I went to an ake at the home of one of my friends and there was his young man. Was delighted to see me again, again he made silent love and saw was crazy about me. Well, nally I thought it was sincere, but I hesitated. This happened tworks ago.

I went out on porch of the ome to cool off, where he sat with another girl, she was kissing her. They did see me so I stepped out of sig and quietly went indoors again. Do you think he can take such person seriously?

MEGS.

No, indeed, not yone should take such a perso seriously, or even give him a ought. He's evidently one of the men whose game is love-making. He kisses every girl he meets, assures her she's the only one, his number is legion, but until the change their tactics, it's too badr a nice girl to pay any attention to them.

Turkey for Columbus Day

By MARTHA LEE

When Columbus discovered America, wild turkeys ranged the forests, and the native Indian tribes fed largely on turkey meat. So what more fitting food could be served on Columbus Day, or the following week-end than Massachusetts native turkey?

Young, plump, tender, these turkeys bearing the blue tag of quality are served often by the wise homemaker, for turkey is an economical meat and good eating to the last bite.

Don't think when you serve turkey that the table must groan with food. Serve very simple accompaniments, so that the delicious flavor is not submerged. Sweet potato patties with Brussels sprouts or cauliflower are all the vegetables you need, with cranberry jelly or sauce, as you choose. Salad should be simple greens, and have pudding or pie for dessert — not both.

There are many turkey stuffings—all good, but the old standby—Savory Bread Stuffing—can be made with more variations than you have ever imagined. Some like it fluffy and some like it moist. Other seasonings may be added, and the bread may be soft, dry or toasted.

SAVORY TURKEY STUFFING

1½ lb. loaf day-old bread, or older
1½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. thyme
1 tsp. powdered sage
½ cup minced onion
2-3 cup butter or margarine
1 cup hot milk

Remove crusts, and cut bread into 1-inch cubes. Drop into a large mixing bowl. Mix with the seasonings. Saute onion in butter or margarine until tender. Then add to seasoned bread. For a semi-moist dressing, stir in the hot milk, mixing lightly with a fork. For a fluffy dressing, omit liquid. Celery may be added, using 2 cups and cook with the onion, before adding. Chopped chestnuts which have been boiled for 5 minutes and peeled may be added. Mushrooms, too, are good. Use ½ lb., chop and cook slowly in the butter before adding. Stuff the turkey the day before it is to be roasted, or even partially roast 2-3 "done" the day before and finish the process just before serving. The flavor is improved; the turkey is easier to carve, and of course the preparation of the meal is much easier.

This amount of stuffing will be enough for a 12 to 16 pound bird. Left over stuffing (if any) may be made into balls, which are dipped in egg and crumbs and fried in deep fat. Serve with cold, sliced turkey.

TURKEY BONE SOUP

Bones of 1 turkey
2 qts. cold water
1 carrot, sliced
1 stalk celery, chopped
1 tsp. chopped onion
1 sprig parsley
¼ bay leaf
3 peppercorns
½ tsp. salt

Place all ingredients in large kettle, bring to a boil and simmer, covered, two hours; strain. Makes 1½ quarts soup.

PUMPKIN OR SQUASH PIE

Pastry
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. ginger
¼ tsp. cloves
2 cups strained cooked pumpkin or squash
2 cups milk, scalded

Line 9-inch pie plate with pastry and make fluted standing rim. Combine eggs, sugar, salt and spices; gradually stir in milk, then pumpkin. Turn into pastry-lined plate and bake in hot oven (450 deg. F.) 10 minutes; then reduce heat to moderate (350 deg. F.) and bake 20 to 25 minutes longer, or until knife comes out clean when inserted in custard. Makes 1 one-crust (9-inch) pie.

Bermuda Fish Hash Dainty Dish

Any man in the world likes hash—well seasoned—but maybe you don't know that there's such a thing as fish hash. It's good, too, a Bermudian specialty.

BERMUDA FISH HASH

Use any kind of boiled fish. Flake fish, add an onion chopped, about four or five slices of bacon, cut fine, a bit of parsley, salt, pepper and a little thyme. Put all in a heated frying pan and let brown. If preferred, a few diced cooked potatoes can be added.

And one more thing—our favorite breakfast hot bread:

APPLE MUFFINS

2 cups flour
¾ tsp. salt
4 tsp. baking powder
4 tbsp. sugar
Apple slices
2 tbsp. butter or other shortening
1 cup chopped apple
½ cup milk
2 eggs
Cinnamon

Sift the flour, salt, baking powder and half the sugar, together. Cut in the butter with two knives, then add the chopped apples. Beat the eggs well and add the milk and then add gradually to the flour mixture. Drop into greased muffin pans. Place a slice of apple on each muffin and sprinkle with the rest of the sugar. Add a liberal dusting of cinnamon to each and bake in a hot oven (400 deg. F.) from 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 12 muffins.

To Relieve Bad Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Swift Acting, and Saves Big Money. Easily Mixed.

You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe. It gives you about four times as much cough medicine for your money, and you'll find it truly wonderful, for real relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This simple mixture takes right hold of a cough. For real results, you've never seen anything better. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

RENO Rendezvous

by LESLIE FORD

WIDOW LATHAM vainly tries to console grief-stricken VICKI RAY, who has been secretly informed of Dex Cromwell's mysterious death.

IT WAS HALF-PAST SEVEN when I got back to the Washoe. The doorman's hand was not half-way to the handle when I had the door open. "Pay him, please," I said, realizing I had no money with me.

I dashed through the door, and stopped abruptly just inside it. Sergt. Buck, in his circus outfit, was there in front of me, methodically putting quarters into one of the slot machines in the hotel lobby.

"Stop dashing about like a chicken with its head off!" I said to myself sharply, catching a startling glimpse of my face in the mirrored pillar behind the palms. It was just in time, for Buck turned around and gave me a fishily indifferent glance. Then he gathered a large handful of quarters from the trough at the bottom, and moved on to the next machine.

"Has Mrs. Bonner come back?" I asked the clerk at the desk as he turned to get my key.

"Not yet, Mrs. Latham."

I started to the elevator and stopped half-way there. Mr. Hogan had told one of his men to get Dexter Cromwell's mail and check up on his messages. Perhaps, when they got to his friends . . . I turned back to the desk.

"I'll take Mrs. Bonner's mail up," I said.

"There's no mail, Mrs. Latham. But somebody's been trying to get her. A Mr. Charles Baker. He's checked out now, on the evening plane."

The clerk handed me a whole sheaf of telephone slips. I looked quickly at them. They began about two o'clock.

I looked up at him. "Mrs. Bonner was in till after three," I said.

"Yes, Mrs. Latham—but the maid said you didn't want her disturbed And she hasn't been getting much sleep, you know."

He smiled playfully.

"I don't know," I said as coldly as I could. "And I didn't know you took your guests' problems as your own."

His face fell ludicrously.

"Why, Mrs. Latham, we only try to be helpful. Many of our guests—especially if they are socially prominent as Mrs. Bonner—have to be protected from all sorts of . . . of intrusion. It's a recognized part of our service."

"Then I beg your pardon," I said.

"Certainly, Mrs. Latham," he said graciously. "We have many problems that the ordinary management of a first-class hotel doesn't have We have to use considerable discretion in dealing with them."

"I'm sure you do," I said. I really didn't want to be outdone in suavity and worldly wisdom by a hotel clerk in a buckaroo outfit.

THE HAT CHECK GIRL!

"And—if you'll pardon my mentioning it—you might suggest to Mrs. Bonner that she could be a leetle mite more careful with her car, Mrs. Latham. A man from police headquarters was in asking whether she kept it in a garage or parked it in the street all night. The police here are—well, nice, but nosey . . . ha, ha!"

"I'll tell her," I said—thinking that they were going to be a lot nosier before they were through. I went on to the elevator, dreadfully aware that the chase was on, and realizing fully that Judy's car was only a blind. Which shows how wrong one can be, no matter how many facts are staring her in the face.

I took a bath and changed my clothes. Then I went in Judy's room and gray sitting room and turned on the lights. For a while I just sat there, and then I poured myself a drink of scotch and let it stand until the soda was flat while I paced the floor, wishing to Heaven Judy would come back. Wishing I'd never come to Reno . . . Wishing I'd used my head and opened the left door instead of the right. Wishing everything I could think of, except that I hadn't taken those damming red-gold hairs. I was glad I'd had sense enough to do that, no matter how badly I'd bungled the doing. I still hadn't destroyed them, it occurred to me abruptly—and also that I'd better do it at once.

I turned back from the open window where I'd come to rest for a moment in my pacing about, and started toward my door. As I reached it I heard a sound at Judy's door, and stopped, my heart almost bursting with relief. She'd come at last, then. I rushed madly across the room and flung the door open . . . drew back. It wasn't July—it was the hat check girl from the River House.

'On'' I said. "Won't you come in?"

She came in. I knew by the strange guarded expression in her eyes that she knew something was wrong. Whether she knew what it was I didn't know. She came in quietly, took off her hat.

"Where's Mrs Bonner?" she asked, biting her full red lower lip thoughtfully and looking at me with narrowed lids.

"She went out riding, about three," I said. "With Joe, at some ranch. Where would it be?"

"With Joe? Bar B. W., then," she said slowly, still gnawing at her lip, tapping her booted toe on the floor.

"Do you want to call her?" I asked, seeing her eyes rest on the phone for an instant.

"She wouldn't be there now. Unless she and Joe . . . went a long way . . . or got lost."

She had a slow lazy way of speaking, as if nothing mattered very much, least of all time.

"Is there any danger of their getting lost?" I asked, rather perturbed.

She looked at me a long time.

"Joe's got a way of getting lost—if it's convenient," she answered coolly. A little smile—not a very pleasant little smile at that—creased the full petal-textured flesh at the corner of her ripe mouth into three provocative dimples.

"Meaning?" I asked.

"Oh, nothing."

"Only—don't let Cowboy Joe's south'n drawl and open countenance fool you, Mrs. Latham."

She got up and walked aimlessly around the room, humming a tune.

BLACKMAIL!

"What are you trying to say, Miss . . .?" I started.

"Vicki's the name," she put in for me. "Vicki Ray. The Ray's short for Eisenbeis, which is too hard for a girl to pack around with her. . And would I like a drink? I sure would. This yours?"

She pointed to the glass on the chromium and rose bar.

I nodded. She took it in the bathroom and poured it down the drain, and came back, her nose wrinkled with distaste.

"There's something about a dead drink that gets me down," she said in her slow fashion. "I guess it's a complex. I don't like anything dead. I don't like to see these ring neck squirrels. You see them all over the road, coming home early in the morning. I guess the headlights blind them and they can't get out of the way. Or dead birds. I don't like to see dead birds."

She mixed herself a drink.

"I guess you think I'm goofy, talking about things being dead."

"Oh, no, not at all," I said. "I don't like dead things either."

She sat down, spread her feet apart and sat bending over, her elbows on her white tight-breeched knees, her glass suspended between them in both hands, swishing the amber liquor around in it.

"Does Mrs. Bonner know Dex is dead?" she asked, without looking up; and added, "Officially, I mean?"

I suppose I'd been expecting something like it, because it didn't surprise me, somehow. It seemed a perfectly natural continuation of what she'd been saying.

"I don't know," I said. "Do you? Officially, I mean?"

She shook her head. Then she gave me a slow, startlingly authentic Mona Lisa smile, and said lazily, "Don't get me wrong. I know it because a friend of mine on the force called me up and told me to get under cover, if I needed to—plenty will be breaking loose before morning."

She drained her glass and got up. "I told him I didn't need to cover up—see?"

She poured another drink. I wouldn't have realized even then that she was already pretty tight if she hadn't missed her glass with the syphon and sent a spray all over the rose linen curtains. She steadied herself and aimed better the second time.

Then she turned around and looked at me, not smiling this time. "I don't need to cover up—see?" she repeated. A belligerent note crept into her slow voice.

I nodded.

"I've got an alibi. I live at a boarding house in Mill st."

She sat down again.

"It sounds like Jane Austen," I observed.

She looked up. "Don't know her. Is she taking the cure?"

I shook my head. It didn't matter. The cure at Bath in 1805 wouldn't mean much to Vicki who'd taken the cure at Reno.

"Well, anyway," she said, "Your landlord keeps an eye on you, in boarding houses. He's your witness."

I suppose I looked puzzled. I felt so.

"You've got to have a witness when you get your decree, to swear you spent your six weeks in Reno, not in California," she said. "You've got to be here part of every day. Not that they all do it, but that's the law.

"Anyway, Mr. Tucker knows I came in early last night. He sits up till everybody's in, just like my mother always did. He's done it for years—Kaye says he did it when she stayed there. All bundled up in his overcoat in front of the kitchen fire. Last night he was waiting up for two girls who'd been up to Tahoe. They get their decrees tomorrow. I guess he doesn't want anything to go wrong, so they have to hold over a day. He'd got their room rented for tomorrow night."

That was pretty puzzling, too. I didn't know then that if a "divorcee" is detained out of the state so that she misses a day or two in her six weeks' residence, she can make up her time at the end.

(Where is Judy? Has she learned of Dex Cromwell's death? Don't miss tomorrow's gripping chapter.)

Fire Dangers City Jail Stores

Inmates and officers at Charles St. jail had a little excitement today when a dumppile in the yard caught fire, apparently from spontaneous combustion.

Because of a high wind and the fire's close proximity to the jail's paper house, where supplies are stored, a fire alarm was sounded.

By the time firemen arrived, however, jail officers, with two or three inmates, had practically extinguished the blaze, using a light hose and fire extinguishers.

H. C. Fahnestock Dies Here at 70

Harris C. Fahnestock, 70, socially prominent in New York, Boston and Lenox, where he maintained a summer home, died today from a heart attack at the Copley Plaza hotel after a two weeks' illness.

Scion of an old New York banking family, Fahnestock was a graduate of Harvard University in the class of 1892, and was a member of the Union and Tuxedo clubs.

Two years ago, he surprised society when he married the former Mrs. Georgette Gerard-Varet Hyde, one-time companion of his daughter Faith.

Fahnestock is survived, in addition to his widow, by a son, Harris C., Jr., of Cambridge, well known sportsman-pilot, and by two daughters, Mrs. Patte of New York, and Mrs. Alfred deMarrigny of the Bahama Islands.

Fire on Bus Follows 6 False Alarms

Six false alarms kept Cambridge firemen on the run early today. The seventh, however, turned out to be a grease fire on a bus. Passengers stood by while firemen put it out with chemicals. The mishap took place on Western ave.

Al Smith's Son Casts Own Brown Derby Into Ring

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (INS)—The name "Alfred E. Smith" appeared again today on an election petition.

But it is Alfred, Jr., and not his father of brown derby fame who is seeking election to New York's City Council.

"You're starting on your own political career," said the former Governor of New York and one-time Democratic nominee for President as young Al filed his petitions. "If you achieve any part of the success I did, you'll keep the name alive."

Unlike his father, Smith Junior is not starting his political career as a candidate of Tammany, the regular Democratic organization. He described himself as an "independent Democrat."

Auto Gossip

By OTTO SCOOPS

Le Salle to visit the automobile dealers of Greater Boston Oct. 14-21. The Boston Auto Show is being held in each individual dealer's show room this year. Each and every car boasts new lines and major improvements. Don't forget the date. . . . Charles M. Curry, Ford UC supervisor, speaking about the Ford dealers of Metropolitan Boston, tells us that they have shown a great improvement over a year ago in new Ford sales. Used car sales have brought all inventories down. He expects great things in 1940 . . . We welcome the Amory Motor Co. a new firm that joins the ranks of auto dealers on the Avenue . . .

Fred Ordway, proxy of Henley-Kimball's, Hudson distributors, is one of N. E.'s most ardent gunners—At the present moment he is up in the wilds of Maine for two weeks adding trophies to his game bag . . . Len Estes of Packard Motors UC reconditioning dept., is home recovering from an auto accident. Everyone in the organization are pulling for his recovery . . . J. J. Brodigan, Chev. dealer in Dorchester, is to be congratulated on acquiring the services of Bill Wright to sell his new and used cars . . . Bill's many friends will be pleased to learn of his new connections . . . Jack Lavery, UC salesman at T. C. Baker's in Brookline, Vermont is back to work after having been laid up for 10 days . . .

Al Graham hard working representative of the Boyal Tire Co's factory crew is back from Gale who is pitch hitting for Wasting Al a speedy recovery. It seems the week is tough . . . Charlie Lowd, UC salesman at George Olds, is back from Germany and has many interesting stories to tell . . . If you haven't heard the horn on the new Ones yours is for a treat . . . We welcome Willard Mosher to Lamm & Partridge. He will take complete charge of the UC dept. His background and experience certainly qualify him for the job . . . By scorin in the final period with Brockton, Medford High remained in the undefeated class—Head coach, Tom O'Connor, as you probably know, is the brother of Okie (C. E. Fay) O'Connor . . . Charlie Mussey, asst. gen. mgr. of Mass. Motor Car Co. has just returned from a Canadian fishing trip — Members of the organization swear that he brought back a salmon that weighed 22 lbs and measured 40 inches, this years biggest catch in that vicinity.

Bob Corrigan one of Joe Murphy's (Murphy Chev.) ace salesmen waxed soft cushy enthusiastic in a three minute presentation about the 40 Chev before the Dealers' Meeting yesterday to cop the first prize of $100 . . . E. E. Carliket, one of Quincy's most dependable dealers, announces a new service dept. Ben Cody . . . Walter Cavagnaro Oldsmobile dealer at the Dorchester Garage has his outfit looking spic and span and is rarin' to go . . . Jack Ludkin of Jackson Sq. Chev. got away from the excitement of his busy corner in Roxbury to the quiet solitude of the Big city (N Y.) where he conferred with the big wigs . . .

It is rumored that Pat Feeley of Ulman Buick Cheverolet, was recently appointed admiral of the Point of Pines Yacht Club . . . An increase in the service business of Main Motor Mart, Malden Packard, has necessitated an increase in their mechanic staff. There will be a cridival at the Bill Healey home sometime this October. Bill is a salesman at Hub Chev. in Cambridge . . . Ellery Motors, Ford dealers in Cambridge, have cleaned out their entire UC stock and are ready for another banner year with the '40 models . . . Eddie Covell appointed sales mgr. of Princeton Motor Sales by Jerry Perry Holoway. Eddie comes well recommended as a capable and energetic man—Best of luck! . . . Eben Rosenfeld of Bells-Parkway announces his Studebaker dealership in addition to Hudson—The boys at his outfit are preparing for a hectic auto show week . . . One of the snappiest "personality kids" in Boston is George Kramer of Dudley Motors Sales.

AUSTEN LAKE

The Man Who Never Died—Ode to G. H. Lowe

TWO WORDS ARE FUTILE THINGS—at best the feeble filterings of the brain. The language of the heart is mute. The written phrase is cold. No tongue may frame the spirit's speech!

Austen Lake

Well then . . . there is a grassy mound in an Arlington cemetery where a soldier's flag flutters before a simple headstone. October's winds whisper to the grandfatherly elms that lean down arms in leafy benediction . . . "not dead" the soft winds say, "not dead, but sleeping." Autumn's rains weep over the fading slopes and a tired season pauses in an attitude of listening. There in a quiet hamlet of eternity lies the bravest man I ever knew.

Not dead! George Lowe lives on!

The gothic frame, the grayed tumble of blond hair, the friendly glint of a blue eye, the firm clasp of a well-remembered hand, the low-spoken voice—that's gone. The human capsule has departed. But Lowe lives in the heart of his friends. No man had more.

It brings back faith. For in the muscular, big-boned fellowship of football wherever it gathers for a bowl and a crust; in the downtown canyons where the curbstone alumni gather for noontime chat; in the I-remember reunions of hotel foyers, they speak of Lowe. Not in a mouldering tone of regret but as of one who looks backward along the corridor of Time and greets a friend. His replica, in bronze, hangs in an Arlington high school. A memorial service and procession is planned for Armistice Day. A scholarship is being funded for Exeter Academy. Adult opportunity for his small daughter is being prepared.

Yes, this brings back faith. For beneath the pebbly-shelled, profane and horny handed surface of hairy manhood, the waters of brotherhood run deep.

A Hero's Story

SO THIS IS NO BELATED OBITUARY, but a grateful salute to the ever-present spirit of one who dealt fairly, and left a little of his immortality with all who knew him. I was more fortunate than most. We were schoolkids and teammates at Exeter and Lafayette, barnstormed professionally, worked in the same steel mill, soldiered in the same French outfit, and came back to gallop arthritically as college football officials.

Why do I write this now? Today is the 21st anniversary of the afternoon in France when a sliver of German shrapnel wounded him in the back. He carried the calcified fragment until death. Few knew how he was hit. As a verbal wreath to his memory I'll tell it now.

In that twenty-one year old yesterday, Lowe, as sous-chef of a French ambulance section was directing the evacuation of wounded from a shell-torn town on the Aisne. Half the village was occupied by French. The other half by Germans. The streets were a landslide of masonry. The air was hideous with the hornet hum of hate.

Duty did not call upon Lowe to go into this man-fashioned inferno. But he did. He rode with an ambulance driver to the outer edge of town, over roads pitted with craters and under a shower of black-

Lou Gehrig Named To N. Y. Parole Job

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—Mayor LaGuardia today appointed Lou Gehrig, former New York Yankee star first baseman incapacitated by a subtle form of paralysis, a city parole commissioner.

HAPPY AGAIN. Lou Gehrig marches off ball field into $6000 parole post the happiest man in the world. He's one boy the "City That Has No Heart" took care of.

The appointment, for a term of slightly more than 10 years, carries a salary of $6000, less a current 5 per cent pay cut.

The commission is a five-man board, headed by the police and correction commissioners, ex officio, with three members appointed by the mayor.

"The matter has been under advisement for over four months," the mayor said in making the announcement at the summer city hall in Queens.

"In the meantime, Mr. Gehrig has read about all the reports on parole that have been published and several works on the subject.

"I have had several conferences with him, and the final decision was made a few days ago.

$49,000 TO $6000

"I believe he will not only be an able, intelligent commissioner, but that he himself will be an inspiration and a hope to many of the younger boys who have gotten into trouble."

"Surely," the mayor said, "the misfortune of some of the young men will compare as trivial with what Mr. Gehrig has so cheerfully and courageously faced. He expects to devote his life to the public service."

Since June, when Gehrig was found to have an ailment which precluded much strenuous activity, he has remained as the captain of the Yankees, on the "active" player list, although doing little except walk out occasionally with the day's batting order.

His present baseball contract, the exact terms of which were not announced, was believed to be slightly under his last year's salary of $39,000—plus a $5614 share of the Yankees' World Series victory money.

'DEFINITELY IMPROVED'

Gehrig, 36, played with the Yankees in 2130 consecutive games—a record—from May 30, 1925, to May 2 last when, after a mysterious batting slump and a general slowing up in his reactions, he "benched" himself and later went to the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., to find out what was the matter.

He returned 10 days later with the heartbreaking report, which shocked the entire sports world, that he had a form of chronic infantile paralysis which in all probability marked the end of active athletics for him.

The physicians said that by taking things easy and getting regular treatments, he might resist the ailment, and after a checkup Aug. 22 reported that was "definitely improved."

EAGLES WILL MISS MONTGOMERY'S SPEED

The stage is set once again for one of those much publicised intersectional battles. The grid teams of Boston College and Florida University are the rivals and the setting will be Tom Yawkey's Fenway Yard, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Both squads are in perfect physical condition and a furious battle appears in the making. The Eagles are of course unbeaten, but the opposition to date has been far from Bowl calibre. Florida on the other hand has played three stiff games, and while victorious in but one of them, has made quite a reputation.

Coach Josh Cody's "Gators" pasted rival Stetson in its curtain raiser, then went down to two touchdowns defeats at the hands of both Texas and Mississippi State.

While Boston was getting great doses of ego, conquering dinky opponents like Lebanon Valley and St. Josephs, the Floridas were toughtening their armor battling Texas and Mississippi.

EAGLES HAVE EDGE

On talent alone Boston College appears to hold the edge. But the edge will be considerably dulled by the loss of Lightnin' Lou Montgomery, the little colored "gee whiz" from Brockton, who will not be allowed to play.

The Florida game was contracted before Lou graduated from high school and at that time, with no Negro athletes in the school, Boston College agreed not to use any Negro

Move to Oust Browns' Prexy

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11 (AP) The Sporting News, national baseball publication, says there is an inclination among the "left wing" of the board of directors of the St Louis Browns to demand the resignation of Don Barnes, president of the club, at the board's annual meeting this month.

This faction, the newspaper says, feels Barnes "should retire after being on the job three years without getting better results."

The Browns finished in last place in the American League race twice and in seventh place once since Barnes and associates took over the organization from heirs of the Phil Ball estate in 1936.

"The chief complaint of the discontented faction," says the Sporting News in its issue this week, "seems to be that they are not taken into consultation when important moves are made. Criticism has been leveled against Bill Dewitt, business manager, as well as Barnes."

Lyons, 38, Beats Whitehill, 39, In City "Rubber"

CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP)—After 17 years, the Chicago White Sox still find Teddy Lyons, 38-year-old righthander, a handy man to have around.

Lyons, smart and steady as ever, pitched the Sox to the city baseball championship last night, setting the National League Cubs down with five hits for a 7 to 1 victory in the seventh game of the series.

The victory, Lyons' second of the series, gave the Sox their fifth straight city diadem. The Cubs, who had a three-to-one edge through Saturday's game, have not won a series from the American Leaguers since 1930.

The Sox knocked Earl Whitehill, 39-year-old southpaw, out of the box in the second inning when they sewed up the game with four runs. Later they scored three more off Claude Passeau.

ARNOLD GRIDDERS REFUSE TO QUIT

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 11 (AP)—The 19 members of Arnold College's football squad gamely voted today to complete their schedule come what may, perhaps on the theory that hardly anything else can happen.

Immediately after the ballot, Coach Jack Lockery and his team left for Lowell, Mass., where tomorrow the Arnold Terriers will meet Lowell Textile.

The original Arnold squad numbered 25, more than half of the college's male enrollment. Two games in which the New Haven college was defeated, 47 to 6 by Maine and 39 to 0 by Connecticut Teachers, cost them six of their best players.

After Lowell, Arnold is scheduled to meet Bates, Trenton Teachers, Montclair Teachers, Wagner and Bergen Junior College.

Smokers themselves have made PHILLIES America's No 1 cigar

"Dear Sirs:— I've smoked a lot of cigars in my time--5 cent ones, 10 cent ones, some even higher priced. I can honestly say I've never smoked a better, milder cigar--day in and day out--than Phillies".

"That guarantee on the lid of the Phillies box ought to convince any smoker he's getting more for his money than any other cigar can offer"

HERE'S THE PHILLIES GUARANTEE:

The same cigar today, for only 5¢, that was good enough to become the biggest-selling brand at 10¢. Same imported wrapper —same ripe Domestic—same quantity and quality of fine Havana tobacco.

"As a cigar dealer, I watch what people smoke. Experienced smokers usually reach for the Phillies box. You can bet I keep it on top of the case. I don't wonder it's America's Number 1 cigar. I sell more Phillies than any other two brands combined".

LEADING PLODDERS IN EAST BOSTON TEN-MILE EVENT

Our Lady of Mt. Carmel H. N. S. is no slouch when it comes to road racing.

This East Boston organization will stage its first annual 10-mile grind tomorrow morning and it has succeeded in getting the finest competitors in the land entered.

Included are Tarzan Brown, B. A. A. marathon record holder; Les Pawson, twice winner of the same event, and former record holder; Johnny Kelley, 1935 B. A. A. marathon winner; Lou Gregory, winner of the recent St. Leonard's run, and Hawk Zamparelli, former Northeastern constellation and N. E. 5000-meter king.

The race, a ten-mile affair, will start and finish at Maverick square, and will see at least 75 runners starting.

Sixteen prizes will be awarded, and especially important will be the fight for the team prize. North Medford has entered nine runners, including the four Brown brothers, Grant, Graham, Frank and Fred.

Millrose is expected to send over a better team.

Most prominent of the entries but figured to play a minor role in the proceedings is Clarence DeMar, seven times B. A. A. Marathon winner, who has passed the crest.

Bay State 'Pures' Rally to Cause

The Irish-American A. A. will stage the third of four Golden Gloves trial tournaments at the Arena next Monday, and the best show of the tournament is anticipated.

A grand rally is expected from the Bay State boys because the Rhode Islanders have been stealing the thunder in the first two trial tournaments.

Biggest surprise of all was in the 175-pound class last week when Abel Gonsales, R. I. light heavyweight champion, knocked out both Pat Devine, New England light heavy king, and Henry Dogoenski, hard hitter from Miller Falls.

Entered from Rhode Island for next Monday's show are Paul Verdletti, Providence, 112; Frank Topaziu, Bristol, 118, and Al Abbotamettec, Providence, 126.

TUBBS CALLS SIGNALS FOR HUSKY ELEVEN

Critics have already come to the conclusion that the Huskies will drop their third in a row to Bates on the week-end.

Dunn, however, feels that if he can ever get his gang rolling, they are going to surprise a few teams. The Huskies' mentor feels that poor signal calling has hindered his team greatly and has decided that Ronnie Tubbs will call the plays in the huddle.

Tubbs is a steady going veteran blocking back who knows what it's all about. If Tubbs can pick plays with the same efficiency that he throws blocks, the Huskies should look much better offensively Saturday.

Meade to Ride At 'Gansett

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Oct. 11—Narragansett Park's fall meeting, which opens Oct. 23, will again feature a jockey colony of exceptional class, with practically all of the leading riders of the country booked to do their stuff on the Pawtucket strip.

Leading the pack, of course, will be Don Meade, who will stay at 'Gansett for the entire 18-day meeting.

Don, who really started his comeback at the spring meeting here, is riding in sensational form as his four-bagger on opening day at Jamaica proved.

Meade is under contract to George Odom, who has made reservations for 10 stalls at 'Gansett.

Other topnotch riders booked to return to 'Gansett for this meeting include Johnny Adams, who rides for W. E. Boeing and Mrs. Emil Denemark; Lester Balaski, who rides for Binglin Stable; Bobby Dotter, who does the booting for Babe Wells, and R. Eccard, L. Dupps, J. E. Oros, V. Polk and Freddie Scheih.

BOSTON SCHOOLS IN HOLIDAY TWIN BILL: LYNN E. AT AT LAWRENCE

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

Football for breakfast will be the menu tomorrow morning when three of the leading contenders for the Boston City schools grid title swing into action at National League Field at 9 a.m. in the feature of the Columbus Day scholastic program.

Without looking further down the card, this Joe McKenney doubleheader promises to offer the spice of the card with at last one of the prospective champions crushed.

Boston English, top ranking favorite to repeat for the town title, will open activities against a stubborn Trade School eleven while Dorchester and Mechanic Arts, having passed their single tests thus far in the campaign, clash in the nightcap.

In their only start, Bill Ohrenberger's boys ran up a three touchdown margin over Roxbury Memorial as Emil Shotgren, Tom Brennan and Sal Malkasian punched their way to victory and this backfield should duplicate its performance against this holiday foe. The same English line will be working, Ohrenberger finding it next to impossible to be dissatisfied with their recent showing.

TRADE BOWS TO DORCHESTER

Coach Harry Tilton's Traders found Dorchester's forward wall impregnable as they dropped their second decision of the season, the other loss the opener at Middlesex. The offense and defense lacked polish, but if the boys have learned their lessons in their two defeats, they stand a slim chance of stopping the highly touted English attack.

The fireworks will break into their full fury in the Dorchester-Mechanics tilt with both teams primed for victory.

Henry Aleo and Marty Concannon, co-captains, make Dorchester a serious threat offensively and defensively in all contests, while big Gerry Cowhig forces Coach Dutch Holland's club into the high rating in the Boston ranks. Cowhig scored three touchdowns in his fall debut against Latin and will bear watching throughout the game.

THREE WINS FOR L. ENGLISH

Meanwhile the tussle for state honors will continue with Lynn English traveling to Lawrence for the leading suburban clash. Lawrence, tied once, and English, undefeated in three starts, are both strong in the running with one or the other due to drop this standing.

Coach Tom Whelan's outfit, on the strength of its three night victories, boasts a slight edge in Mike Chiaradonna, speedy back, whose work has paced the Lynn offensive.

Brockton's class A champions, kayoed from the untied ranks by Medford last week, faces a New Bedford club that may cause the Shoe City squad a bit of trouble. The Whalers tipped Lynn Classical out of the undefeated ranks in their most recent start and may stop the charges of Bill Gold and Bernie Lanoue.

Gloucester, co-state champions last year, takes on Swampscott; Beverly invades Peabody while undefeated Ipswich meets Reading in a trio of inviting contests on the North Shore.

PLAYS WITH BROKEN BACK. Ken Strong, former all-America back at N. Y. U., will play with the New York Giants despite a broken back. Here's Trainer Gus Mauch strapping Ken's back with corset especially designed for him. Most of Ken's work will be confined to field goal kicking, at which he has no superior.

FOOTBALL FLASHES

By BILL GRIMES

On the last play in the third period of the Holy Cross-L. S. U. game, Linesman Joe McKenney tooted his horn and floored not only the experts, scouts and eye witnesses, but also the combatants.

Since that little toot was sounded by McKenney, football enthusiasts of both the "lay it on the line" and radio varieties have been endeavoring to be enlightened as to what happened.

The eye witnesses saw Jimmy Cajoleas pick a Gerry Hightower pass out of the air for what they believed to be a first down on the Holy Cross 4-yard line.

The New England and the Louisiana radio listeners heard the play described.

Joe McKenney

When Referee Ed Geiges declared the ball dead by blowing his whistle, the third period was over. The eye witnesses recognized the fact and the air audience was advised by the announcers.

But, when Referee Geiges placed the ball on the Holy Cross 31-yard line and signaled that it was first down and the Crusaders' ball, the experts, scouts, announcers and the cash customers were stumped.

After the game, Referee Geiges explained the play. It was fourth down for L. S. U. and the ball was on the H. C. 16. The play was a forward pass, Hightower to Cajoleas, and the receiver was thrown, after making the completion, on the Holy Cross 2-yard stripe which should have given the Tigers a first down.

But Linesman Joe McKenney had detected a L. S. U. guard down the field, which is a direct violation of a new rule inserted to stop screened passes. The penalty for such an infraction is the loss of a down and 15 yards.

As it was fourth down, the ball went to Holy Cross. And, as the play started on the Holy Cross 16-yard line, the ball was placed on the 31-yard line for the start of the fourth period.

Very capable officiating on the parts of Ed Geiges and Joe McKenney.

Capt. Paul Sullivan of the B. U. Terriers is very just on repartee. He says that the new spirit which his trammates display is caused by the keen rivalry for regular berths; that at the B. Due to the fact that there are not enough native sons in Florida to constitute a respectable sized color guard, there isn't any reason for Boston College keeping Lou Montgomery out of tomorrow's game with the Gatas.

If the request came from the University of Florida, the Sunshine State authorities have gone native to the extent of posing as Southerners. If you hear just one "Ya-All" uttered by any member of the 'Gata party, it will be affected, not a natural utterance.

Curly Byrd is trying to wean Dick Harlow back to dear old Maryland. He wants the current Harvard coach to be athletic director and football mentor at the University of Maryland. After five seasons at Cambridge, Dick Harlow might appreciate a berth where there are no scruples about going after football talent.

Young Bussey, who set up the third L. S. U. touchdown against Holy Cross by snaring a Leo Bird forward pass with one hand for a first down on the Crusaders' 4-yard line in the third period, was the ringleader of the players' strike at the Louisiana State University a year ago. Apparently, the authorities do not hold anything against Bussey for he'll be the acting captain of the Tigers this week against Rice Institute.

Harlow Fearful of Chicago Forward Passing Attack

By DAVID GLUECK

An improved Harvard squad is working hard in preparation for Chicago. The Crimsons know that the Windy City club is the most unorthodox one they will meet this season, and are prepared for anything.

DUCK. B. U. Western Reserve's on the way here to play B. U. Saturday at the Fenway, and Stan Miltko, guard, is leading the procession. Stan played here last year in game which Reserve romped all over Solly Nechtem's stalwart crew.

Since Alonzo Stagg left Chicago they have gone steadily down hill, until now they hold unchallenged bottom ranking in the big ten and are seriously considering giving up football next year.

At the same time they have abandoned the more accepted conservative type of play for a desperate, gambling variety. Last year, Harlow watched them pass two touchdowns over his boys before superior condition and power finally wore the Western outfit down, 47—13.

Chicago tries everything from every kind of formation. Most of their passing is done from a corrupted single wing-back formation, with the end split from one to four yards, and the wing-back sometimes outflanking the defense by as much as 20 yards.

Plays are also run from spread T and box formations, in fact, the backs never seem to take the same positions twice in a game.

WASEM BACK

This makes it very hard for the defensive team to make satisfactory adjustments, and with an inexperienced secondary, already shown to be weak on pass defense, Harvard may have considerable difficulty in keeping the Progressives scoreless.

Last season's scramble had the impromptu carelessness of sandlot touchfootball, with Chicago throwing passes all over the field, two of which were snatched by Bob Wasem for 12 points.

This year Wasem is back as co-captain with Davenport who has held the big 10 sprint championship since his sophomore season.

Lewis Letts, talented leather lobber, will be tossing them up for the captains. Two veteran guards, one senior tackle and fullback, Howard, who news reports notwithstanding, will probably start against Harvard, complete the nucleus of Coach Clark Shaughnessy's club.

With an improved line and the same mad aerial ability, Chicago may present more of a threat to the Crimsons than doughty little Bates. Harlow is spending 40 minutes an afternoon on defense against the western plots, which gives you an idea of what he thinks about them.

SHIFT VANDER EB

The Harvard team should/be decidedly strengthened by recent position shifts. Hank Vander Eb who had no experience at end, has been returned to blocking back and may replace Curtis as stand in for Bill Coleman.

Mose Hallett, who turned out to be too tall for a running guard moves back to tackle behind Tom Healey. Big Ted Lyman who impressed the authorities with his Saturday tackling is now playing at center, where he will be used as support for Burgy Ayres, the single experienced snapper-back on the squad.

Revamp Terriers For Wildcat Tilt

In an attempt to somewhat offset the speed and power of the vaunted Western Reserve attack, Coach Pat Hanley will have two backfield units available for his Boston University eleven next Saturday afternoon at Fenway Park.

Oddly enough, the starting quarter last Saturday against Franklin and Marshall has been dropped in ranking and four new faces will be on the field or the opening whistle.

Walter Williams, whose sensational passing and kicking last week has been the talk of the town, will be at fullback with Charlie 'Snake Hips" Thomas, a 155-pound sophomore halfback who went 45 and 20 yards on different occasions to score twice in the opener, is at left halfback.

Johnny Wedemeyer, a big rugged pile driving sophomore, will be at the other halfback, and Johnny Connearney, the Terriers "spark-plug," will call the signals.

Connearney is the only junior in this starting quartet, the other trio all being sophomores. While Hanley admits they will make mistakes Saturday, they have the speed and drive to continually threaten the Wildcats.

The second backfield will have George Pantano at quarterback, Al Clark and Jimmy Cassidy at the halfbacks, with Ralph Salvati at fullback.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

THE UNIVERSITY of Florida football team will try to pass its way to victory when it clashes with Boston College at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon.

Louisiana served advance notice on Holy Cross last week that big Ken Kavanaugh, crack end, would score on at least two or three passes. Kavanaugh then lived up to advance notices.

Florida has let it be known it has a top passing team. The Southerners are quite frank in admitting that they have not a backfield composed of line plungers. They say hitting is the line in old time stuff, and that modern football calls for an aerial attack.

Southern and Western football teams have been quick to adopt the open game. It has brought them football fame.

The greatest exhibition of open play ever given in Boston was put on by the Green Bay Packers in the early days of professional football in Boston. The Packers stretched their line almost across the field, and then started tossing a football around as if they were playing basketball. The Packers had Western players in their lineup, youngsters who had come out of college thoroughly schooled in modern football tactics.

A touchdown pass has as much crowd appeal as a Jimmy Foxx or a Ted Williams home run. Teams that furnish aerial thrills attract the big crowds and end up with good records.

Florida will take to the air at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon, and will make Boston College realize it is in a real football game.

Frank Leahy's Maroon and Gold eleven has been coming along well. There were some bad spots in its play against Lebanon Valley and St. Joseph's, but most of them have now been eliminated.

Boston College's eleven will receive a tremendous welcome from the public when it faces Florida. Football fans in this part of the country are eager to see Boston College rated with the ranking elevens of the country, and they will accord the team full support if it displays real class.

I am going to forget about what Louisiana did to Holy Cross and how Alabama turned back Fordham, and am picking Boston College to win over Florida tomorrow. I believe Frank Leahy's eleven will win back some of the football prestige that has been lost by Northern colleges.

Yanks Held Reds in Contempt

BASEBALL WRITERS back home from the World Series are telling their pals that the Yanks held the Reds in utter contempt after the first two games in New York. Riding to Cincinnati in the car with the world's champions, members of the Yanks told one sports writer that Paul Derringer was the only first class player on Bill McKechnie's club.

It wasn't a case of overconfidence on the part of the Yanks, but rather a cold blooded appraisal of the opposition. In the two series games played in Cincinnati, the Reds went on to prove that the Yanks had judged them correctly.

Bill McKechnie probably deserves much credit for winning the National League pennant with the aid of some players who were misfits with other clubs.

The Cardinals had a better team man for man than the Reds, but they didn't have McKechnie to guide them in the flag fight.

Why Break Up the Yanks?

THE MOST silly argument being made since the series is the one calling for the breaking up of the Yanks in order to equalize things in baseball. Who will get Joe DiMaggio under such a foolish plan? The Red Sox fans would like him for Tom Yawkey's club, while Detroit rooters probably feel Joe could do quite a job playing for the Tigers.

Of course the Yanks will not be broken up. Ed Barrow, wise in baseball affairs and the man chiefly responsible for the building up of the great New York machine through his excellent farm system, is already searching for a first baseman. Babe Dahlgren, while a brilliant fielder, isn't rated as much of a hitter even though he did all right for himself in the series. The Yanks would like to get a first baseman who can hit for at least .300.

Rather than asking for the breaking up of the Yanks the fans should demand that other major league clubs show as much enterprise and daring as the management of the world's champions.

Tom Yawkey knows the Yanks will not be broken up, and for several years has been building up a farm and scouting system that he feels in time will produce the players needed to gain supremacy for the Sox in the American League flag fight.

Yanks Give Rival Clubs the Jitters

THE YANKS have a habit of giving rival clubs the jitters. Teams do not as a rule play within 20 per cent. of their best form when they oppose the clan of Joe McCarthy.

The Red Sox is the only club that didn't back up when the Yanks came on the field carrying their heavy artillery. Joe Cronin and his players proved that the Yanks can be beaten.

Unfortunately for the Sox they lacked the pitching and catching strength to carry them successfully through a hard pennant drive.

In sizing up the Yanks, the fans all recognize the power of the club, but they often overlook its excellent defensive strength. The world's champions have not a single weakness.

GOVERNOR TO OPEN SHOW

Two hundred show horses of royal breeding, drawn from throughout New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania launch their bid for the trophies and rich purses put up by the 12th annual Boston Horse Show, when Governor Leverett Saltonstall officially opens the 110th Cavalry classic tomorrow evening, at 7:30, in gaily-decorated Commonwealth Armory.

The Governor will give the signal for the show to commence its four-day run, with a presentation of 64 events in a series of six sessions, from the box of Colonel Philip L. Brown, show chairman, and Mrs. Brown. Other guests in the Gubernatorial box will be General Daniel Needham and General Roger W. Eckfeldt, with their ladies.

Arthur H. Lovesy, show secretary and ringmaster for close to half a century, will blow his bugle, and the show will be on with the novice saddle ponies answering the call.

POLICE ON DISPLAY

Twelve events comprise the "Governor's Night" program, with the most colorful feature being the exhibition drill and prize competition of the Boston Mounted Police, in command of Sergeant William B Dooley. The judging will be more rigorous than ever, as a record-breaking collection of five trophies are to be passed out among the bluecoats. The trophies include the Hotel Kenmore, Sears Roebuck and Fox and Hounds awards.

Of interest to devotees of jumping will be the open jumping championship, first division; green hunters and novice hunters. Model hunters also will be judged for conformation, as well as the model saddle horses, two divisions of novice saddlers, lightweight polo ponies and five-gaited stallions and geldings.

JUMPING DEBUT. Henry Yozell tunes up for jumping competition at Armory tomorrow night. It will be his first venture at competitive jumping. He's also entered in costume event Sunday evening.

Cahill Out of Georgia Game

WORCESTER, Oct. 11 (INS)—Co-Captain Ronnie Cahill remained a doubtful starter today as the Georgia game drew closer for the Holy Cross Crusaders. Backs Johnny Kelley and Henri Giardi also seem destined to remain on the sidelines Saturday. Groomed for relief roles were Bruno Malinowski, Gus Gerasimas and Albin Klasauskas.

Challedon Clinches Three-Yr.-Old Title

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 11 (INS)—Any doubt that W. L. Brann's Challedon is the year's three-year-old champion disappeared today following the bay's smashing of the world's record for a mile and three-sixteenths.

Challedon, in winning the $5000 Tranter purse in the opening day feature at Keeneland, was clocked in 1:54 3-5. The former mark of 1:55 was set in 1934 at Narragansett by Discovery.

The victory was Challedon's seventh of the year and boosted his total winnings to $236,010.

HANSEN RETURNS TO NAVY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—Navy football stock zoomed on the pigskin 'change when Harold (Swede) Hansen, 225-pound end, returned to practice in shape to play against Dartmouth Saturday at Baltimore.

Coach Swede Larson doesn't need Hansen any more than he needs his right arm. The loss of the big end, kept out of the first two varsity games with a badly sprained ankle, hurt Navy badly.

Larson is shy on capable ends with speed, and Hansen is the second fastest man on the squad despite his bulk.

Hansen's return came opportunely, as his reserve, Franchy Durette, was lost to the team—possibly for the season—when internally injured in a pileup against Virginia Saturday.

Wes Gebert, rookie backfield flash, was also still in sick bay, but was due for release tomorrow. Larson is not counting on the young speedball against Dartmouth, however.

Cliff Lenz, veteran fullback hurt in the William and Mary game, was back in shape and will be ready to go Saturday.

EAGLES WILL MISS LOU MONTGOMERY IN FLORIDA BATTLE

gridders. The Southerners are holding Eagle authorities to their contract.

While the local team may have the edge in individual prowess, the Southerners will have the advantage in experience.

The boys from the land of perpetual sunshine are apparently placing their cause right in the laps of three men.

McKEEVER CALLS TURN

Ed McKeever, Leahy's backfield coach, who scouted Florida in its game last Saturday with Mississippi, says that while he thinks Goff and Battista are great linemen, he won't go on record as calling them tough enough to hold the Boston College running attack.

Harrison, however, reports Ed, will be as good a back as the Eagles will be called upon to face all year.

The same line and practically the same backfield which started against St. Joseph last week will be on the field for Boston College when the opening whistle blows.

Leahy decided this at the conclusion of a fast workout, during which pass defense was stressed and the varsity was given a half dozen new plays to work on.

Frank Maznicki, sophomore halfback, who was the best freshman running back last year, will replace Montgomery at right halfback, and Frank Davis, who started the opening game with Lebanon Valley but watched Butch Kissell start last week's arc battle, may replace the latter at fullback tomorrow.

Davis, one of the most improved college gridmen in the country, has been bothered the past two weeks with a pinched hip muscle, but more than likely will be ready tomorrow.

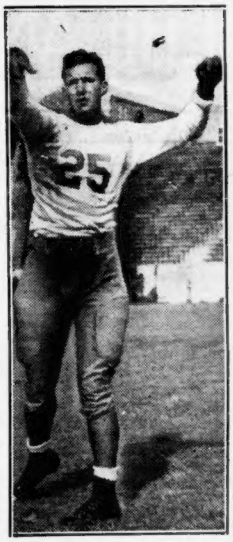
KISSELL MAY GET CHANCE

If he isn't Kissell will be at fullback and with Bob Jauron, the starting left halfback and Maznicki also sophomores, Ed Cowhig, the quarterback, will be the only letterman in the backfield.

That's the "B" quartet.

The "A" group of Toczylowski, O'Rourke, Ananis, and Cignetti, will sit on the bench for the first period at least while the Cowhig unit tests the opposition.

From left end to right, the Eagle frontier will read, Harrison, Manzo, Capt. Schwotzer, Gladchuk, Kerr, Yauckoes, and Goodreault. Florida will probably find that bunch as tough to penetrate as it found Texas and Mississippi, and if Mr. O'Rourke delivers one or two of his patented passes, Cody and Co. will wish they stayed home.



GOOD PITCHER—Bud Walton of the invading 'Gators considered one of the best passers in the South. He will be out there pitching at Fenway on the holiday.

spitting shrapnel. And when he reached the first-aid post, a fetid, gloomy cellar where medical crews tended mutilated men, the ambulance was loaded. Unless he dislodged a French "blesse," there was no place for his return. So with that simple courage and honest purpose that marked his every act, Lowe stayed.

Four Days in Hell

MEN IN THE FELDGRAU OF THE GERMAN army were pressing through the ruins, the artillery supports blasting the battered refuge of the French and as Lowe turned toward shelter he felt stabbing pains in his back—a paralyzing pain like the searing thrust of a white-hot poker. A bearded French "broncardier" rushed through the tumbling walls and dragged him in.

So, as the tide of battle ebbed and flowed over his head Lowe lay for three days, sometimes swooning into black descents and sometimes awakening in a state of helpless twilight. He lay among the groaning shapes while the dying exchanged precious places with the dead and no ambulance came now to take away their grisley loads. Food and medicine had long been exhausted and Lowe lay with his heavy pulse-beat mingled with the outside chaos. And on the evening of the third day, during a lull, a stubborn driver brought his bus to the cellar. Unrecognized and unable to speak Lowe lay there while the driver, a Dorchester youth, loaded his stretcher trays and drove away. It was not until night of the fourth day that stretcher bearers came from the rear to trundle the beleaguered men to safety, creeping through sink holes and pocked earth where once French farmers plowed the land and whistled at their work.

Behind the lines there were long months of gruesome operations and gradual convalescence and after that reoccurent spells of nausea. The French gave him a bit of bright metal on a colored ribbon which, characteristically, he never wore. The U. S. commissioned him an officer, but he merely added his Sam-Brown and silver bars to his old, clay-smeared soldier's uniform. He distrusted display.

So perhaps when his legion of friends form fours a month hence and march for the sake of memory, Lowe will look from yonder with his curly grin, calling silently and from the heart the names of those who pass by. They will be unheard hails, for no tongue may frame the spirit's speech. The language of the heart is mute!

Kellar, Cahill Work With Purple in Preparation for Georgia

WORCESTER, Oct. 11 (AP) — Coach Joe Sheeketski sent his Holy Cross football squad through another scrimmage in an effort to bring the beaten team back fast for Saturday's game with Georgia at Athens.

Jack Kellar, one of the five injured regulars, worked at his right tackle post in the signal drill and Ronnie Cahill, ace triple-threater, engaged in light exercise.
